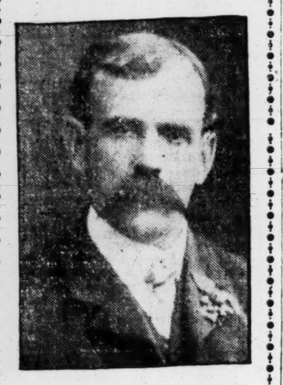
KILLING CAUSED BY A QUARREL BETWEEN BOYS

J. M. Thompson, a Carpenter, Cut to Death by Walter Shurley.

THOMPSON'S SON IN ROW WITH SHURLEY'S BROTHER

Older Men Tank Up, Trouble Between the Lads, and Fatal Affray Followed—Shurley Badly Cut—Says Thompson Attacked Him First.



JAMES MONROE THOMPSON, Who Was Killed by Shurley.

As the result of a wrangle between two boys at 24 Berean avenue last night about 7 o'clock, the older brother of one of the boys, Walter Shurley, killed the father of the other one, J. M. Thompson.

Thompson attacked Shurley, it seems, striking him first with his fist, and then using his knife. Shurley immediately drew his knife, and cut the other man all to pieces about the lungs, causing death in about two minutes. Both men were boarding at 24 Berean avenue, the house being conducted by Mrs. C. A. Moncrief.

Late yesterday afternoon 12-year-old Kirby Thompson and 18-year-old Charlie Shurley became involved in a boyish wrangle. The matter came to the ears of the two older men, and Thompson is said to have remarked that he was going to "stamp on" young Shurley, if he didn't let the other boy alone. Walter Shurley and Thompson were conversing about the matter, Shurley saying that the boys ought to be allowed to settle their own disputes.

Lie Passed and Returned.

The talk went on, and finally Thompson, it is stated by witnesses, called Shurley a liar. Shurley, so he claims, tried to avoid trouble, and began to go in the direction of the door to his room. Thompson repeated that Shurley was a liar, whereupon the latter said, "Well, you're one, too!"

Thompson, it is said, then struck Shurley fair in the face, and almost at the same moment drew his knife and cut Shurley severely on both sides of the head. Shurley staggered back toward the

PAGEANTRY GREAT SUCCESS AND MANY SAW PROCESSION

Bars and Stars Floated in the Breezes of the Perfect April Day Yesterday—Graves Decorated at Oakland Cemetery.

With guard and drum and earnest eloquence, Atlanta yesterday honored with sacred song and story the memories of those who consecrated their lives to a cause that still lives in the heart of the south.

Old soldiers there were, who yesterday marched shoulder to shoulder to the long roll of the drums and the cheers on cheers of the spectators that more than forty years ago were defending Georgia soil at the risk of their lives.

"Oh I wish I was in the land ob cotton."

This by the band. And then how the cheers went up for the living as they passed by until the vibrations went echoing and re-echoing on to those other waiting ones whose places were marked by the fearful gaps in the lines of yesterday.

Life jumped from the commonplace to patriotic heights.

Careful observers, visitors from other sections of the country, stood on the steps of local hotels and cheered the Stars and Bars that were carried in the procession and were omnipresent in the bunting that served as mural decorations along the line of parade.

Throngs of waiting spectators lined the main thoroughfares of the city long before the hour announced for the procession. Proof in plenty, these thousands, that patriotism and appreciation of the builders of this, the world's greatest republic, are not dead, but alive in the hearts of rising generations; from wee little youngsters who toddled to the curbstone yesterday to those who have enjoyed more than the alloted three score years and ten.

Altogether the day was a beautiful one. As beautiful in inspiration and palanta air that furled and unfurled the old Stars and Bars with each passing breeze.

Many Colors of Uniforms.

Many were the colors of the uniforms of those who marched in yesterday's Memorial day parade. There was the old gray that marked the uniforms worn by those of the United Confederate Veterans, while a smarter shade of this same color was present in the natty uniforms of their sons and grandsons, who made up the ranks of the Mafia, college and the Georgia Military college. Then there was the brown khaki of the Atlanta boys of the Fifth regiment, Georgia state troops, here and there the blue of a soldier of the regular army or a veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic. Striking was the appearance of the blue-shirted and white-trousered members of the fire department fire and drum corps, Taarao, the mascot goat, awakening cheers all along the line.

Then there were the uniforms of the officers and the mounted men of the Governor's Horse Guard. The firemen also made a fine showing as they marched by, while the police department representatives from the mounted officers to

SAYS BROTHER STOLE HIS WIFE AND CHILD

MRS. CHARLES JONES AND LITTLE DAUGHTER EVA.
Mrs. Jones' Husband Claims That She Has Eloped With His Brother

Asserting that his own brother robbed him of his wife and little girl, Charles Jones, of Jacksonville, Fla., has been in Atlanta since last Friday searching the city with detectives trying to locate his faithless wife and heartless brother.

Failing to find the couple, Mr. Jones decided yesterday morning to make public the whole affair and had printed, under the direction of the chief of police, a circular giving a description of his brother and wife, and offering a reward of $50 for their arrest.

Charles Jones, who is a news agent on the Seaboard Air Line railroad, was living happily with his wife and child in Jacksonville, Fla., up to the 31st of last March. His brother, Oliver Jones, a railroad man, was boarding with the family. There sprung up between Mrs. Maude Jones and her brother in law an affection unsuspected by the husband, the latter asserts, and which at last led to the woman and her lover eloping. They left Jacksonville on March 31 and carried her little daughter, Eva, with them.

Charles Jones started out to hun them and traced them as far as Macon. In that city he secured evidence which led him to believe that they had come to Atlanta and are now hiding here.

For five days he searched Atlanta for brother and wife and failed to locate them. Then he published the circular, which is as follows:

Reward Is Offered.

"A reward of $50 will be paid to any one who locates Oliver Jones and Maude Jones and Child.

"Description: Oliver Jones is about twenty-eight years of age, dark complexion, dark hair, black eyes, small mustache, also black; height, 5 feet 6 inches; one gold tooh on upper set, front; will weigh between 145 and 150 pounds; flagman on Atlantic Coast Line between Sanford and Jacksonville.

"Maude Jones, wife of Charles Jones, who went away with Oliver Jones, is about twenty-three year old; height, about 5 feet 8 inches; slender; black eyes and hair, fair complexion, small, blue scar on lower lip; was well dressed, wearing black velvet suit and black hat; weight, about 115 pounds.

"Child, Eva Jones, 2 1-2 years old, light complexion and light hair, brown eyes."

Determined to Find Them.

Mr. Jones asked that any information about the missing couple be sent to Chief of Police Jennings.

"I will find them," he stated to a reporter of The Constitution last night, "if I have to hunt the rest of my days and I will pay whatever costs are necessary. I had a happy home that is now desolate. When I think that my own brother robbed me of wife and child and destroyed the happiness of my life it is more than I can endure."

City detectives are still looking for the man and woman. If found they will be taken into custody so that Charles Jones can proceeded against them as he may see fit.

453 CITY BLOCKS BURNED AT 'FRISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—A map just published here of the burned district shows an area covering 453 city blocks, 111 of which are south of Market street and 342 at the north end. It is estimated that the buildings destroyed will be in the neighborhood of 60,000.

MONEY WORRIES SAN FRANCISCO

What To Do With Sums Contributed Is Discussed.

Announced That Every Dollar Will Be Put to the Use for Which It Was Intended—The Situation Continues to Improve.

San Francisco, April 26.—What to do with the immense amount of money that has been contributed to the relief of the homeless people was the question that today received careful consideration by all those now engaged n relief work. So many inquiries have come to the heads of the various departments, civil and military, asking for and by whom the money contributed would be expended, that the Associated Press was asked to communicate to the country the assurance that every dollar would be put to the use for which it was intended.

At noon today the distribution of food to the city af San Francisco was formally turned over to the United States army. Under this system many abuses that have prevailed in the giving out of supplies by various local and outside relief organizations acting independently will be discontinued.

The impression which seems to have prevailed in eastern cities that there was friction over the concentration and distribution of Red Cross supplies was corrected to day by Dr. Devine, general agent of the Red Cross, who repeated his assertion of yesterday that absolute harmony prevailed and that the work was carried on to the entire satisfaction of everybody.

The reports from the leading hospitals at the Presidio and at Golden Gate park today showed that the number of patients is fewer than yesterday. The decrease is probably due to the fact that the privilege of free transportation over the railroads to any part of the state expired at noon today, and many of the patients who were suffering from minor injuries and complaints left the hospitals in time to take advantage of the generosity of the railroads.

F. P. GAMBLE IS BADLY HURT.

His Horse Slipped and Fell on Him. Wrist and Ankle Sprained and Left Side Bruised.

F. P. Gamble, general manager for the south for the D. Appleton Company, and one of Atlanta's best known and most popular young business men, was badly hurt in a peculiar manner during the parade yesterday. Mr. Gamble was an aide to Captain W. D. Ellis. His horse slipped on the asphalt on Peachtree, between Harris and Cain streets, and fell on Mr. Gamble, spraining his wrist and ankle, and bruising his left side. Mr. Gamble is being attended by Dr. W. S. Elkin, at his apartments in the Lorain, and last night was reported as doing well. Mr. Gamble is a superb horseman, but the horse fell so quickly that it was impossible for him to prevent the accident.

TEXAS TOWN SWEPT AWAY BY TORNADO

YOUNG NEGRO TOOK PISTOL FROM TROLLEY CONDUCTOR; LADIES THROWN INTO PANIC

One negro, Allen Gotman, of 158 Grant street, was shot in the face, Conductor P. A. Hudson had his pistol taken from him and narrowly escaped a bullet which was sent after him, and a carload of ladies were thrown into a panic in a small riot which occurred yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock on an outbound Lakewood car, at the corner of Crew and Jefferson streets. The negro who took the pistol away from the conductor and fired the shots held a dozen men at bay, and finally escaped into the woods about Grant park. He is still at large.

During the affray Hudson and a young man named C. H. Christian, of 688 Washington street displayed remarkable nerve, and totally unarmed, followed the negro and attempted to catch him.

When Conductor Hudson approached a sporty-looking young negro and asked him for his fare, the negro flatly refused to pay for the privilege of riding. Seeing that he was going to have trouble with the man, the conductor rang his motorman down, intending to put the negro off. At this the negro, assisted by two of his friends, overpowered Conductor Hudson and tried to get his pistol, which he had just drawn. In the scuffle the weapon exploded, shooting old Allen Gotman under the left eye, and causing a painful wound. The negroes succeeded in getting the pistol, and as the shooting continued, the people on the car became panic-stricken and rushed to the exits.

The conductor, who had got away from his assailants jumped from the platform and picked up a handful of rocks, intending to attack the negro, who still held the pistol. The negro followed the conductor, fired one shot at him, and then fled into the woods.

Christian, who was the first man to come to the assistance of the plucky conductor, followed the negro, but as the latter reached the woods he turned upon the white man and, pointing his pistol at him, commanded him to stop. Being quite unarmed, Christian did not follow, and the negro was last seen making his way to the woods about Grant park.

In the meantime calls had been sent to the police station and to the Grady hospital. Call Officer Cooper answered the call, but when he arrived the negroes had disappeared, leaving no traces behind them.

be tomorrow before there are complete reports of the dead.

The fact that so few was killed is accounted for by the fact that practically every house was equipped with a storm cellar and the people ran to them as soon as they saw the tornado approaching. Those who had no storm cellars or who could not reach them were the ones who suffered. Last winter many lives were lost in the same neighborhood by a tornado.

Conservative estimates place the loss between $155,000 and $175,000.

The inhabitants of the town are not only homeless, but without food or raiment and utterly destitute, all their possessions being swept away. Relief is being hastened to them from neighboring towns.

Memphis, Tenn., April 26.—Mrs. J. W. Skinner, wife of the manager of a local manufacturing company, was shot and killed by her husband tonight while seated on the veranda of a local club house. PICKED UP A MILLION OR SO.

(From The New York Sun.)

Ernest Chapman, a carpenter, picked up yesterday afternoon at Wall and New streets a bank book lost by a messenger of Wolf Bros. & Co., bankers and brokers at 100 Broadway, which contained a check for one million dollars and other checks for amounts aggregating $750,000. All of them were payable to the National City bank. He went to the Mutual Life building, where he was employed on work in the Northern Pacific offices, and asked the railroad officials what to do with his find. They pointed out the address on the bank book, and there the carpenter went.

"They led me past a lot of cubby holes into a little room in the corner," said Mr. Chapman, discussing his experience afterward. "There at the desk sat a man who didn't as much as turn around to look at me. The man who was with me told him I'd found something.

"'Has he got it?' said the man at the desk, not looking up for a minute.

"'He has,' the other man said, noticing me pull the book out of my pocket.

"'Give it to me,' says the other man without turning a hair. And, seeing from the way of him that he was the owner of the goods, turns over the book.

"'They're all right,' says he, acting as if they were of no consequence whatever. 'Here, give him this.' And with that he hands out a ten-dollar bill over his shoulder and the other man gets it and gives it to me and the big man never looks up and never says 'Thank you' or 'Where did you find it?' or anything that you'd most expect, and I goes out and comes back to work, wondering if I want that ten-dollar bill so much after all."

Chapman's fellow workers said he was on the police force in England once. On Sundays he sings in the choir of the Rev. Robert Paddock's church, Twenty-eight street and Ninth avenue, and he lives at 319 West Twenty-sixth street.

At the offices of Wolf Bros. & Co. it was said that they intended to use the carpenter politely. They thought they had recompensed him fairly for his trouble, since the checks were worthless to

Troops Are in Readiness as if for War.

Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery Being Massed in Paris to Preserve Order—Great Alarm Is Felt by the Citizens.

Paris, April 26.—The prefect of police, M. Lepine, this afternoon made a reassuring reply to hundreds of letters which anxious citizens had addressed to the police. He said that all precautions had been taken to maintain order in the streets May 1 and prevent attempts against life or property. Besides the full police force, which will be on duty, reinforcements, consisting of 28,000 infantry, cavalry and artillery, will arrive here tonight, tomorrow and Saturday. These troops will be disposed throughout the city with precise orders. Special surveillance will be maintained over the water and gas mains. nI addition to the troops mentioned eight squadrons of cavalry relieved from duty in the mining regions have been brought to Paris and Dragoons and Hussars are coming from many other points.

In strike circles the men are calmer. There has been no renewal of the disorders and the return of the northern iron workers to their factories indicates a partial break up of the movement in the mining regions.

The workmen in numerous additional trades have announced their adhesion to the eight-hour movement, but the railroad men and employees of the provision trades do not intend to strike. The announcement this afternoon that the big department stores will remain open as usual served to reassure the public.

The government has received the most positive assurance that the labor leaders do not intend to permit any disorder May 1. Accordingly the government's view is that there is not the slightest danger of serious trouble.

The officials of the American embassy and consulate take a similar view. Many Americans have been making inquiries as to the desirability of leaving Paris and the answer given was that there is not the slightest danger.

The trouble in the department of the Nord is considered to be over.

The miners' strike, however, continues in the department of the Pas de Calais, where the troops have arrested seventeen of the ring-leaders in the recent disturbances.

GRAVES STREWN WITH FLOWERS

Fully Seven Thousand at the Ceremony.

Prior to the Arrival of the Parade Great Crowd Had Assembled at Oakland, All Bearing Flowers to Decorate the Graves.

It was 4 o'clock when the head of the line, escorted by a platoon of mounted policemen entered the Hunter street gateway to Oakland, Grand Marshal Joyner surrounded by his aids riding immediately behind the blue coated path clearers.

As the ladies, the members of the various camps, the marshal and his aids, the color bearers and others having features on the presentation were making themselves comfortable in chairs and upon the benches about the monument the Napoleon gun of theh Marist college cadets with its firing squadron of six, under command of Cadet Captain McGovern was rushed to the eminence in the extrem eastern section of the grounds where a salute of thirteen guns later closed the exercises of the day.

Long before the soldiers marched into the cemetery, Oakland was thronged with men, women and children of all ages, nearly every one carrying a bundle of flowers varying in size as they varied in color. Scattered all over the grounds, the Confederate monument being apparently the point of centralization, the gathering awaited the coming of the line, and along with that line came a multitude of Atlantans, relatives and friends of Atlanta veterans, who, for the first time in the history of Atlanta's Memorial day were given the position of honor in the parade, first place.

At the monument Chief Joyner was master of ceremonies, and called upon Rev. Dr. T. P. Cleveland, pastor of the Wallace Presbyterian church, for an invocation. Then the "Sweet By and By" was sung, the entire multitude, it must have been seven thousand strong, joined in the rendition as it did apparently when "God Be With You" was sung. Dr. Cleveland pronounced the benediction, and then as chief Joyner requested the flower-laden folk to give their attention to the graves of the dead soldiers, and to see that not a single grave was overlooked, the Marist cadets firing squadron broke the stillness of that section with the deafening roar of the first of its thirteen gun salute to the heroes of that lost but never to be forgotten cause.

With the first guns the ladies, some old and bent, others young, agile, yet carrying all the love and veneration possible, commenced their sacred task. As the cannon boomed and as the echoes floated over the grounds where grape and bullets once flew thick and fast, the mother, the sister, the daughter, the granddaughter dropped a tear and a flower upon the sleeping place of some member o fthat gallant, fearless, invincible army which for years followed the immortal Lee, the gallant Hood, the fighting oJhnson and other leaders of the cause yet dear to the hearts of every southern woman.

WOMAN TO FACE MURDER CHARGE

Mrs. Ramsey Held for Mrs. Glover's Death.

Police Believe That the Woman in Custody Committed the Crime of Murder Through Her Jealousy of Luttrell.

Bristol, Tenn., April 26.—The second day's investigation of the murder of Mrs. Mollie Glover, who was found dead in her bed with her head split open and almost chopped from the body on Tuesday night, resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Jamine Ramsey, who admitted before the coroner's jury that her relations with Sylvester Luttrell, in whose house the murder was committed, and who was arrested on suspicion of the crime, were for several years of an intimate nature, but had been severed.

Witnessed testified that Mrs. Ramsey had just previously declared her intention of murdering Mrs. Glover, through jealousy for Luttrell, and upon this evidence she was arrested and is now in jail.

The coroner's jury is still in session and hearing testimony of various witnesses, and as yet no direct light has been shed on the mystery. The police lean strongly to the opinion that the murder was committed by a woman, through jealousy. Luttrell is still held.

Macon, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—The closing session of the Royal Arch Masons of Georgia today witnessed a donation of $200 to the California sufferers and a gife of $1,000 to the Georgia Masonic home in this city for many improvements planned by the trustees. ## Testimony of Witnesses for Alleged Heretic Barred.

Witnesses for Dr. Crapsey Not Allowed to Answer Certain Questions as to Doctrine—Case for the Prosecution Is Closed.

Rochester, N. Y., April 26.—The prosecution this morning rested its case in the trial of Rev. A. S. Crapsey, rector of St. Andrews church, of Rochester, N. Y., on the charge of heresy and violation of his ordination vows.

Before doing so John Lord O'Brien, counsel for the prosecution, filed with the court for record a letter to Mr. Alexander from Dr. Crapsey, dated January 15, 1906. He then submitted as evidence the collect, epistle, creed and gospel for St. Mark's day as contained in the book of common prayer.

Congressman Perkins, counsel for the defense, admitted as evidence that Dr. Crapsey had taken all his ordination vows.

Mr. O'Brien then called Rev. Francis Woodard, St. Paul's church, Rochester, and ahsked him to repeat the substance of a conversation held with Dr. Crapsey in February, 1905. To this Perkins objected, on the ground that this conversation was in the presentment against Dr. Crapsey, citing as precedent the case of Dr. Williams, in which the prosecutor was the bishop of Salisbury. After the argument the court decided to exclude the evidence. The prosecution then rested its case.

Briefly, the case of the prosecution consists of the original presentment against Dr. Crapsey, the evidence given yesterday by Mr. Alexander; the book of Dr. Crapsey's sermons, entitled "Religion and Politics;" the book of common prayer; particularly those portions to which the prosecution yesterday drew special attention, the canons of the church and other such documents.

Witness for Defense.

The first witness for the defense was the Rev. J. A. Leighton, professor of philosophy in Hobart college. Congressman Perkins put in evidence certain books bearing upon the doctrine of the Protestant Episcopal church, including the work on the incarnation by Dr. Briggs; "Christ," by S. D. McConnell, and also works by Canon Henson, of West Minister abey; Frederick Temple, former archbishop of Canterbury; the Rev. Frederick Palmer, of Andover, Mass., and others. Witness said in reply to questions he had read all the books mentioned, as well as the presentment against Dr. Crapsey.

"Do you think," Mr. Hopkins asked him, "there is anything in the specifications of the presentment contrary to the doctrine of the church, as the law has commanded and as the church has accepted it.

Mr. O'Brien objected. He argued that the doctrines of the church were clearly and explicitly set forth in the book of Common Prayer, and were not in need of interpretation; that no man could qualify as an expert on a question of doctrine. He then read from Creed:

"And in Jesus Christ our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried. He descended in to Hell; the third day He arose again from the dead."

"There is the doctrine, clearly and unmistakably set forth," said Mr. O'Brien.

Much argument from counsel for both sides followed. Ex-Chief Justice Stiness, of Rhode Island, closed an argument for the prosecution with the words:

"Toleration of error does not establish it as truth," and Mr. O'Brien pleaded with the court to look at this question with strong hearted wisdom and remember that the church was not a cowardly church, and to perceive its clear duty.

He was answered by Edward M. Shepard, of New York, who declared that the prosecution begged the question, which was one of interpretation.

Point Won by Prosecution.

"The question is," said Mr. Shepard, in conclusion, "whether a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal church who, having taken his vows of ordination and studied the Holy Scriptures is persuaded as a result that the Nicene creed means certain things, should or should not preach these things. It then becomes his duty and his right to preach these things."

The court ruled that the testimony of Dr. Leighton was not competent, and sustained the objection made by Mr. O'Brien. The court in sustaining the objection taken by Mr. O'Brien to the testimony of Dr. Leighton declared that the witness had been asked to decide questions which were before the court, in other words, he had been asked to act for the court, and for this reason the objection taken by the prosecution was sustained.

Congressman Perkins called several clergymen to the stand, including the Rev. John P. Peters, of church, of New York, all of whom, he declared, were ready to give evidence similar to that which the defense wanted Dr. Leighton to give. It was shown by questions directed to these witnesses that they could be regarded as experts in matters of church doctrines, the defense declaring that it wanted to put in the records that the court excluded the evidence of these clergymen.

Just before the closing of today's session the court ruled that the whole book, "Religion and Politics," can be admitted in the argument. The court adjourned at 3:30 o'clock until tomorrow morning, when the prosecution will begin summing up.

A theologian will speak in the summing up for each side, Dr. Elwood Worcester, of Boston, appearing for the defense, and Dr. Francisco J. Hall, of Chicago, for the prosecution.

LINES WERE DRAWN IN IRWIN COUNTY

Candidates Favoring Clark Howell Were Successful.

Primary Election Held in That County Resulted in a Landslide for Henderson for the Senate and Branch for the House.

Irwinville, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—In the primary election held in Irwin county yesterday there was a landslide for J. A. J. Henderson for senator; E. J. Dorminy, representative, and W. W. D. Branchfi for tax collector. There was no opposition for M. Luke, Jr., for clerk; D. A. McInnis, sheriff, and Archie McMillan, tax receiver.

The lines were closely drawn between the supporters of Hoke Smith and Clark Howell. The candidates for senator and representative who favored Howell won by a majority of about 700 votes out of a total of 1,600 polled. The friends of Howell are very jubilant in Irwin county today.

At Ocilla, a Hoke Smith poll was taken a few weeks ago, and it was reported as 107 for Smith and 6 for Howell. At that place the Smith candidate for senator received 17 votes and the Howell candidate 346.

YACHTSMAN ACCUSED OF PIRACY.

Captain Kempt, U. S. N., the famous yachtman, has incurred a charge no less grave than piracy on the high seas. His adventures by land and sea are thrillingly set forth in Robert Barr's wonderful novel of love, mystery and adventure, which will begin serially in this paper, Sunday, May 6. It is the first novel of the Authors and Newspapers Association's $150,000 series that is revolutionizing literature. Order your paper in advance to avoid disappointment.

Natural Course.

(From Tit-Bits.)

An army examiner once had a very stupid candidate before him, who apparently was unable to answer the simplest question. At last the examiner lost his temper, and with sarcastic emphasis quite lost on the youth before him, queried:

"Suppose, sir, that you were a captain in command of a company of infantry; that in your rear was a impassable abyss; that on either side of you towered perpendicular rocks of untraversable height; that before you stood the enemy, one hundred men to each one of yours. What, sir, would you do in this emergency?"

"General," said the aspirant to military honors, "I should resign."

BOYISH QUARREL CAUSES KILLING

door of his room, but drawing his own knife began lunging blindly at Thompson. Thompson sustained a deep wound in the throat and several deep stabs into the lungs.

After cutting Thompson, Shurley shut his knife and put it in his pocket, and then disarmed the other man.

As Shurley walked away Thompson fell headlong through the door, screaming: "Don't let him cut me; don't let him cut me!"

A moment later he died in the arms of Charlie Haney, the son of Officer W. D. Haney, who lives near at hand.

Shurley walked to the rear of the house and waited without any attempt to escape until the arrival of Call Officers Hulsey and Dorsett, who had been summoned.

Shurley's Statement.

Shurley was taken to the police station where City Physician Wilkins attended to his injuries. Shurley bled very freely from two ugly cuts in the temples, but is not in a serious condition.

When seen by a Constitution reporter last night, he was still very much shaken as a result of his life and death fight. When questioned, he related how the fight occurred, his statements tallying substantially with those of witnesses. He said that he had tried to avoid the fight, and that he had killed Thompson only to defend himself, after the man had already dealt him a blow in the face and had cut him severely. He said that there had been no bad blood between himself and the dead man before, and that the fight was entirely due to the trouble of last night.

The saddest feature about the affair is that Thompson leaves behind him two young boys entirely alone in Atlanta, except for kind neighbors. The boys are named Kirby and Wayne, and are about 10 and 12 years of age, respectively. Mrs. Moncrief and other neighbors are taking care of the youngsters until the arrival of relatives.

Thompson was about 50 years of age and came originally from Coweta county. He has been living in Atlanta for about seven years, carrying on his trade of carpentry. He has recently been working on the house on Mitchell street which collapsed not long since. He lost his wife a few years ago, and is survived by his sons, two daughters, Mrs. Annie Thompson Coursey, and Miss Ada May Thompson, of Lithia springs, and three brothers, Green Thompson, Rev. Sam Thompson, and another brother, all of Carrollton, the names of the sons are Able, Wesley, Charlie, Kirby and Wayne.

Thompson a Bad Man.

Thompson had the reputation of being a "bad man." It is stated that he killed a negro several years ago at Newnan in an election row. He also had to leave the country at another time after stabbing almost to death Walter Carmichael. Carmichael recovered after a long fight between life and death. The trouble occurred between the two men on the road between Newnan and Roscoe, Ga., culminating at Carmichael's house and Thompson's attack is said to have been quite unwarranted.

Shurley is a painter by trade. He was recently employed by the Standard Telephone Company, and has lately been engaged on odd jobs. He is about 23 years of age, and is said to be a steady and hard working young man.

The body of Thompson was taken to Swift & Hall's undertaking establishment. The funeral arrangements will be announced on the arrival of relatives.

No inquest has been held by Coroner Thompson, as there were a number of eye-witnesses. Shurley's case will come up before Judge Broyles tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

GEN. C. A. EVANS REPORTS ON CONFEDERATE HISTORY

NEW ORLEANS, April 26.—General C. A. Evans, chairman of the committee on history, prefaced his report proper by a few words relative to the material prosperity of the nation at large and the south in particular. He then said:

"The reputation of the people of the south is so dear to themselves that they insist upon a fair portraiture in history. The true story of the people who formed the confederacy and fought its battles is of more value to the future citizens of the south than all property lost in that struggle. The character of a people, who, in the language of Gladstone's famous compliment, 'had created a nation,' is worth for future influence more to the United States than the billions expended in preventing their success in the effort to secede.

"When the generous character of our nation becomes known, it will be known that the south brought in the first offers to construct the nobler future of this republic.

"It is truly gratifying to ourselves as confederate soldiers that the great interests dependent on accurate history and pure literature have not been neglected during the general commercial advance. This fair field is more pleasant to contemplate because it is becoming cleared of such noxious weeds and chorus as unpatriotic suppressions, sectional expressions, ungeneous treatment of illustrious men and other stimulants of hatred especially concerning the events of confederate times, as men have become informed, more sincere, less partisan, more national. The increase of books relating to the south has been remarkable and in the general tone of the new literature there is a decided abandonment of the former sectional rancor and unfair treatment. This fact is very gratifying to all confederate associations, because it is responsive to their effort to have a patriotic literature uncorrupted by personal prejudice.

The One Great Principle.

"The one great principle that must be sacredly guarded by all writers is that the essential truths of United States history are the rightful common property of all the people of our country. The artful suppression of important historical truths must be construed as an intentional creation of false impressions. It is a criminal hiding of a piece of the common property and therefore this body of confederate soldiers has uniformly and earnestly insisted on fullness, fairness and facts in the history of our common government. The survivors of the confederate armies have never admitted that that is any reason in the old barbarous saying that victors write the history of war; and their protest has been ever vehement against the application of the inhuman cry, 'Vae victis,' to the overpowered south.

"It will be also borne in mind that of these histories submitted to the consideration of the confederate veterans we have condemned with special emphasis the unfairness of those school books which treat southern questions in the sectional spirit, and we are still in earnest on driving all such books out of the schools. We do not want our southern boys and southern girls to be taught any known untruth as a part of their country's history. Why should not both be taught to respect each other and thus lay a foundation in the schools for the subsequent relation which will come in manhood? Why should there be education in prejudice rather than in patriotism?

"'Education in patriotism as one of the objects of this association is the third subject to which the historical committee makes reference in this report. The year just gone is noted for continued and increased attention to special education in patriotic, public spirit.

"All confederate soldiers know that true patriotism is a solid platform on which they and all good citizens of these United States can stand together. There can be no vicious sectionalism in the pure patriot's heart and there will be none in his acts. Love of country moves the citizen to respect the convictions, honor the bravery and defend from detraction the fame of a brother patriot. Love of country is a sentiment which inspires the truest loyalty in word and deed, and it should be inwrought with all other education into the character of American citizens.

Confederate Memorial Halls.

"Now, in order that this great educational purpose shall be made effective, the confederate organizations and southern people are maintaining memorial halls, for the custody of relics and records, paintings and statuary which illustrate their ideals. They have built hundreds of monuments and every memorial stone perpetuates acts of patriotic heroism. They have consecrated cemeteries for their confederate dead to which fair women go and strew the graves with flowers. Their public patriotic gatherings continue to increase and those of the past year were the most enthusiastic. All these are effective means through which the southerners and our country are truly the most patriotic people in the world. In fact, the social atmosphere is permeated with the true spirit of patriotism, as the result of an inheritance which is being nurtured by ladies' memorial associations, Daughters of the Confederacy, Children of the Confederacy, United Sons of Confederate Veterans, the confederate veterans themselves, and the masses of the people. On public occasions the national Stars and Stripes and the flags of the confederate armies under which great battles were lost and won are conspicuous objects of enthusiasm. Thus with banners, badges and martial music, with songs, speeches and parades, with flowers, tears and shouts, our liberty-loving south was electrified again last year with those patriotic sentiments which will not let allegiance to our reunited country grow cold, nor the sublime memories of the departed confederacy die.

"Should any one ask why these demonstrations continue—we that they evince openly the spirit of the southern people, they educate the youth of the south in patriotism, they celebrate the heroic sacrifices which a noble people made for their convictions, and they all manifest the truth that the chivalric loyalty of the southern people can be depended on in times of peace and war.

"Dixie" Forever.

"If any should foolishly ask the old confederate soldier when will your reunions cease, when will you cease to bear your banner in public parade? when will you cease to stir the world with the strains of 'Dixie?' they will answer—answer without the slightest feeling of defiance—that they will cease to hold reunions when they cease to live and not until then. They will say that the revered flag which is the ensign of their comradeship may be folded when the last confederate warrior's soul has taken its flight, and not until then; and that the strains of immortal 'Dixie' as a national air, to be used in celebrating the great glory of our united republic will thrill the hearts of our countrymen forever.

"Concluding this report the committee admonishes you that the confederate soldiers have heretofore made history which the gravers' tools will cut into imperishable monumental forms and the writer's pen will record with fidelity, in durable volumes; but there remains the grave fact that you are making history yet. Therefore let these historic confederate men so order their lives in brotherly kindness, in fidelity to their honor, in allegiance to their country and in the uprightness of all conduct that there shall never come a stain upon the confederate name."

DOWIE AND WIFE GET TOGETHER

Mrs. Dowie Visits Husband at His Hotel.

Dowie Is Said to Be Ill, but It Is Denied That the Purpose of the Visit Was for a Death Bed Reconciliation.

Chicago, April 26.—Following reports that John Alexander Dowie is a very sick man, Overseer Jane Dowie, wife of the deposed head of the Christian Catholic church, visited her husband in his apartments at the Auditorium annex today.

This is the first time Dowie and his wife, who are reported to have been estranged, have seen each other in several months. When General Overseer Voliva assumed control at Zion City Mrs. Dowie cast her lot with the new administration and since then has repudiated her husband publicly several times. Because of this state of affairs those interested in the controversy over Zion City place a great deal of significance in the visit of Mrs. Dowie.

Mrs. Dowie was accompanied to the annex by her son, Gladstone Dowie, but the latter did not enter the room occupied by his father. Mrs. Dowie remained in her husband's apartments for half an hour, after which she was again joined by her son and they returned to Zion City.

That Mrs. Dowie's visit to her husband was for the purpose of a death bed reconciliation was denied tonight by those associated with Dowie, who assert that she called on Dowie to arrange for his proposed return to Zion City next Saturday and his reception at Shiloh house. The report that Dowie was in a dying condition was denied by all those still faithful to him in the party at the hotel.

E. C. Wetten, Dowie's legal adviser, declined tonight to disclose the purpose of Mrs. Dowie's visit.

"One thing I want to emphasize, however," said Wetten, "and that is Dr. Dowie is not as ill as the public has been led to believe. He is in better health today than he has been at any time since his return to Chicago two weeks ago."

STATE SECRET LEAKS OUT.

A state secret which the Czar's Ministers have guarded as their very lives has suddenly come to light through the unconscious instrumentality of an American girl. The full nature of the secret is disclosed by Robert Barr in his newest, best novel of mystery and love, "A Rock in the Baltic," of which this paper has secured exclusive serial rights and will publish, beginning May 6. Order in advance. First of the Authors and Newspapers' Association's great $150,000 series.

MEMORIAL DAY IN ATLANTA

the dismounted men of the bicycle squad, each with a white rose pinned across his breast, awakened the enthusiasm of spectators on the sidewalks and in the windows. But it was the Knights of Pythias in their gold-braided uniforms and their plumed hats that carried more of Oriental splendor than any other company. They were greeted from the first with round upon round of cheers.

Wheeler's Men Cheered.

Many there were in every division of the procession who wore only the ordinary suits of civilians that mark the rank and file of the great army of peace. There were many of these among the marching veterans. And when with the flying guidon came Wheeler's men, mounted and siting their saddles like they had never left them in the forty intervening years of peace, the crowds cheered themselves horse.

One of the most dramatic incidents was that of a horse led by a comrade. The saddle was empty—prophetic both of the ravages made in the days of war and the big gaps that have come with the mustering out of men at the call of the Great Commander of all armies.

Each year finds the number of veterans whose infirmities preclude their marching with their comrades. Yesterday these filled many of the big wagons of the Southern Express Company. Members of council and ladies of the different auxiliary societies in carriages filled with floral offerings brought the procession to an end.

Havana, April 26.—The health authorities in this city are completely at a loss to account for the close quarantine which Mobile has established for ships coming from Havana. # RICHMOND NAMED BY THE VETERANS

Next Reunion Goes to Capital of Confederacy.

All the Old Officers Are Reelected and Medal Is Presented to General Cabell—The Old Veterans Will Parade Today.

New Orleans, April 26.—The formal business of the sixteenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans came to a close this afternoon. One day of the reunion proper is left and that will be devoted to the parade of the veterans which is scheduled to start at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Richmond, Va., was selected as the place for holding the next reunion, the choice being made by acclamation. The only competitor of Richmond was Birmingham, Ala., but the sentiment in favor of Richmond was so strong that the advocates of Birmingham did not allow the matter to come to a vote and withdrew in favor of Richmond before a roll call was ordered. The fact that the monument of Jefferson Davis is to be unveiled in Richmond next year was a potent influence with many of the old soldiers, and they were all exceedingly anxious to hold their next meeting in that city.

The present officers of the organization were reelected by acclamation, there being no nominations made against any of them.

Reunion Uneventful.

The reunion, viewed from a business standpoint, was very uneventful. The chief new measures of importance to be adopted were one which will recommend to the different states that pensions be paid to slaves now living, who followed their masters to the war, and one which declares in favor of the setting apart of one day in the year by each camp of the organization for memorial services in behalf of the confederate dead.

The day closed with a great ball in honor of the visiting veterans, which was held tonight in the auditorium.

The parade tomorrow is expected to be the feature of the reunion. The column is to start at 11 o'clock from the corner of Canal and St. Charles street, pass along St. Charles street to Lee circle, three-fourths of a mile distant, around the circle and back on Camp street to Canal, where it will be reviewed by General Lee, making a total march of 1-2 miles. A number of brilliant features have been arranged for the parade, of which the massing of over a thousand children at Lee circle in such a manner as to form a confederate flag, will be one of the most striking. It is believed that, including the veterans and all other organizations in line, there will be 10,000 men in the parade.

Devoted to Business.

With the exception of the time consumed by the presentation to General W. L. Cabell of a gold medal by the veterans of Arknasas, the second day of the confederate reunions was in its opening hours devoted strictly to business, the reports of the committee on credentials, the battle abbey and historical committee being received and approved.

The presentation of the medal to General Cabell was made the occasion of an enthusiastic outburst of affectionate regard for that grizzled veteran, which deprived him of speech for a few moments, and nearly overmastered him entirely. Quickly recovering, however, he expressed his gratitude in a few words of deep appreciation, which were to the effect that he valued the medal as a testimonial from his old comrades.

The report of the committee on credentials, which was adopted, gave the total number of camps represented as 755, and the aggregate of votes 2,315. The votes by states were as follows:

Alabama, 171; Arkansas, 139; District of Columbia, 7; Florida, 80; Georgia, 199; Illinois, 2; Kentucky, 126; Louisiana, 170; Indian Territory, 49; Maryland, 111; Mississippi, 196; Missouri, 78; North Carolina, 115; Ohio, 2; Oklahoma, 24; South Carolina, 136; Tennessee, 181; Virginia, 113; Texas, 447; West Virginia, 20; Pacific division, 18; Northwest division, 13.

MEDAL FOR GEN CABELL.

Following the adoption of the committee on credentials, the veterans of Arkansas presented a written address to General Cabell and passed over to General S. B. Lee the beautiful medal intended for General Cabell. General Lee added to the address of the veterans a few eloquent words of his own and then pinned the medal upon the breast of General Cabell. The latter, struggling with his emotions, was about to reply when a beautiful young lady, Miss Alice W. Park, of Texas, presented him with a huge bunch of roses, which completed his discomforture. He closed his speech of thanks with the assertion that he would not accept for his share in the civil war "a lump of gold as large as Texas with a diamond in it as big as Arkansas."

A report of the Confederate Memorial Association upon the Battle Abbey was presented and declared in effect that the situation had not changed since the last reunion. Because of the great confusion in the hall Chaplain General Jones, who had undertaken to read the report, was compelled to abandon his task and the report, after being adopted, was ordered printed.

General Clement A. Evans, of Georgia, presented the report of the historical committee, and taking warning by the fate of Chaplain General Jones, said that he would not attempt to read the report, but would file it with the officers of the reunion and he asked that his action be approved and his report accepted. His wish was adopted by the convention.

Richmond for Next Reunion.

The business on the programme was the selection of a place for a reunion. Mayor McCarthy, of Richmond, Va., presented the claims of that city and the loud cheers that greeted him, together with cries of "Richmond," "Richmond" that came from all parts of the hall clearly foreshadowed the result. When the mayor concluded there were loud cries of "question," "question," the disposition of the reunion being to vote before any other invitations had been extended.

J. L. Stratton, of Richmond, seconded the invitation of Mayor McCarthy. General Lee then presented Mrs. Holmes, of Richmond, Va., the president of the Jefferson Davis Monument Association, who told of the work undertaken by the organization and of the final completion of the work of collecting the necessary funds for the erection of the monument. She promised that if the reunion would come next year to Richmond that the unveiling should take place at that time.

Colonel Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, rose in his seat to second the nomination of Richmond and General Cabell, for the trans-Mississippi department. General George H. Harrison, of Alabama, presented the claims of Alabama, urging that the reunion come to Birmingham. Governor J. E. Johnson, of Alabama, also made and energetic speech in behalf of Birmingham. General Carwile, of South Carolina, seconded the nomination of Richmond, and Chaplain General Jones extended his personal invitation for the holding of the next reunion in Richmond.

General Harrison, of Alabama, who had spoken for Birmingham, seeing that the delegates were strongly in favor of Richmond, came to the front of the rostrum and announced that he desired to withdraw the candidacy of Birmingham had. "All those who are in favor of holding the next reunion in Richmond will rise and give the rebel yell," said General Lee, and a tempest of shouts sealed the selection.

Resolutions Reported.

The following resolutions were reported and adopted:

"That any camp which has failed to pay its per capita tax for five years may have its charter suspended after due notice has been given, provided that any member of a defunct camp may retain his membership by paying his annual dues to the camp nearest his place of residence.

"That all subordinate camps hold annually in the month of January memorial services in honor of the dead of the camp who have died in the preceding year.

"That all camps be urged to use every effort to raise funds for the monument to confederate women.

"That the action of the grand camp of Confederate Veterans in the department of Virginia, in attempting to preserve the earthworks in and around Petersburg be indorsed."

The adoption of the resolutions closed the work of the convention, and an adjournment was taken at 11:20 a. m.

The afternoon was brief, business being pushed through with the utmost dispatch. The committee on resolutions presented a supplemental report, declaring in favor of a recommendation to the several southern states that pensions be paid by each state to slaves who followed their masters to the war.

Medals for Veterans.

Some years ago a resolution was passed at a reunion declaring in favor of a provision for the presentation of medals to the man who showed the greatest courage in any battle in which the confederate troops were engaged. The resolution has been neglected heretofore, but today it was resurrected, and it was decided that it should be put into effect at once.

It was also provided in the resolution passed this afternoon that if the soldier entitled to the medal is dead and his heirs cannot be located, the medal shall be presented to the battle abbey to be erected later in Richmond.

The next business was the election of officers for the ensuing year, and all of the present officers were reelected by acclamation.

General S. D. Lee, the commander in chief; General Cabell, the commander of the trans-Mississippi department, and General Walker, commander of the department of Northern Virginia, made brief speeches of thanks for the honor bestowed upon them.

Letters regretting inability to be present were received from Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. T. J. Jackson, Mrs. George E. Pickett, Generals S. B. Buckner, Marcus J. Wright and Basil W. Duke. Mrs. John H. Reagan, wife of the last surviving member of the cabinet of President Davis, was presented to the convention, and heartily cheered.

The convention then formally adjourned to meet in Richmond, Va., in 1907.

Battleship Has Dangerous Experience While Speeding Up Coast.

Boston, April 26.—The battle ship Texas arrived here today after a dangerous experience in a storm while on her way from Charleston, S. You know how it is in a race; the victory isn't always to the strong; "form" counts as much as muscle; sometimes more. The coach watches form and develops it.

ATLANTA, GA., April 27, 1906.

Now for the San Francisco earthquake novel.

That new play, "The Corkscrew," ought to draw.

The "r" months and the oyster are about "all in."

Naturally the smell will be loud when that alleged fertilizer trust is investigated.

Money is being showered upon San Francisco like the ashes from Vesuvius upon Naples.

However, it is indiscreet of President Roosevelt not to be able to conceal his contempt of court.

The Russian situation seems to be unchanged, save that Count Witte is not resigning as often as usual.

The skyscraper acquitted itself again in San Francisco. It has shown itself to be almost earthquake-proof.

Having married and been elected to congress, the country is willing to forget Hobson as an osculation hero.

We infer from their amicable remarks about each other that Mr. and Mrs. Elijah III are slightly estranged.

We used to regard the earthquake as foreign, but it appears to be perfectly at home anywhere on this shaky old earth.

Doubtless Murat Halstead's school of authorship already has agents out selling the true history of the San Francisco earthquake brought down to the minute.

It is reported that the Standard Oil Company is looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to a refreshing plunge in Commissioner Garfield's "immunity bath."

The militia Johnnie was entirely too keen to shoot in San Francisco's hours of horror and chaos. Too often martial law affords a shield and pretext for military murder.

About the time of the San Francisco earthquake Washington felt a few mild shocks in the vicinity of the senate chamber during Senator La Follette's rate bill speech.

President Roosevelt again showed his "impulsiveness" when he admonished the San Franciscans to give the heathen Chinee a square deal in the distribution of the relief fund.

Poultney Bigelow spent three full weeks on the Isthmus of Panama this last trip, and it's a safe bet he got the information he was looking for from other than official sources.

Senator Foraker is said to be "the real leader of the conservative republicans." That may be more or less true, so far as oratory goes, but in the background sits Aldrich, pulling the puppet wires.

Parks are a great thing in any city. Among other things, they are great places of refuge in a dire public calamity like the San Francisco holocaust. One of Atlanta's great public needs is more parks, especially smaller down-town resting spots.

Gorky is "in retirement" writing his impressions of America. In the two or three days covered by his thrilling hotel experience in little old New York he must have learned more about America than Poultney Bigelow learned in forty-eight hours about the Panama canal.

A San Francisco man has invented an instrument by which it is claimed it will be possible to hear a voice 4,000 miles over telephone. Perhaps, some day, an instrument will be invented by which it will be possible to hear the voice of a man in the next block over a telephone.

The great anti-graft crusade has made some of our public officials mighty careful and cautious. The mayor of Pittsburg courteously returned to the secretary of the local baseball team the season pass that had been sent him, notwithstanding the precedent of accepting baseball passes set by President Roosevelt.

"THE OLD BRIGADES."

The 26th of April—usually invested with a tender importance to the southern mind—had this year a double significance. It marked the day set aside for the honoring of those valorous spirits that signed their fidelity to the southland in their life-blood, when conviction and tradition called on them for sacrifice; and it brought an occasion of no less importance—one to which the south ever looks forward with eager and pathetic anticipation—the reunion of those who yet remain to remind us mutely of our obligations to the generation of that period, and to aid us, with minds and hearts still vigorous, in the burdens and the joys of this later and more prosperous era.

There is a solemn and an appropriate sweetness in the conjunction of these events. The objection raised here and there that the dates conflicted and that it would have been better to have allowed sentiment to concentrate itself on separate occasions was not, it seems to us, justified by the reports either from New Orleans or from the south at large. While there was no diminution of proper interest in every southern hamlet because of a small diversion of the survivors, the ceremonies at New Orleans were given an added force and effect by reason of the precious memories conjured up by the simultaneous recurrence of the two anniversaries.

Certainly there was a sublime partnership of wisdom and sentiment in the selection of New Orleans for the current reunion. The death of "Joe" Wheeler during the interim, the return of the confederate battle flags and other moving incidents had conspired to place around this especial reunion an air of unusual sanctity. The city over which had floated the flags of France and of Spain; which bore the brunt of the assaults of Packenham and rolled back the red-coated British tide; and which wore the blood-splashed willow for the dying and dead confederacy—was, by every impulse and emotion of affection and thrilling reminiscence, the correct theater for the commemoration of the deeds which have made the south glorious in the annals of chivalry and patriotism. If the spirits of the brave dead revisit the scenes of earthly travail, we can picture the composite soul of the American soldier mingling with the wearers of the gray at New Orleans yesterday, his feelings a strange blend of sadness and rejoicing.

It was an inspiring and yet a melancholy appeal made by General Stephen D. Lee to the bright young faces that looked on him with steadfast eyes in that great convention hall. He must have had in mind the sure dwindling of the tattered gray ranks, and a sure prevision of greater losses during the coming year, when he said: "To you, Sons of Confederate Veterans, we will commit the vindication of the cause for which we fought. To your strength will be given the defense of the confederate soldier's good name, the guardianship of his history, the emulation of his virtues, the perpetuation of those principles which we love and which you love also, and those ideals which made him glorious and which you also cherish. To you, Daughters of the Confederacy, will be given the loving service of remembering the confederate dead, of ministering to the living who were dear to him, and are in need of your help and tenderness. Worthy daughters you shall be of the immortal women, your mothers, who gave to womanhood a new perfection of heroism, and a more divine expression of sacrifice and devotion."

In those words of crystallized calmness and clearness, spoke the embodied voice of the great confederate soul and the portentous traditions and ideals for which it stood. It was a plea, a confident, compelling plea, from the passing era to the coming era; it was a charge and a bequest, manly, irresistible, loving in its absolute faith in those youth-flushed men and women to whom the words were addressed—representatives of the virile, restless, onsweeping south of today.

Charge and bequest and plea—they will all be regarded and kept sacredly and with an eager gladness. It is not often that aging fathers have the opportunity to transmit to the hands of their descendants memories and ideals of such tremendous worth in the eye of history and of such living force in the molding of upright, honorable life wherever the lines of that life may be laid. So that while the men and the women and the children of the south will labor with intelligence and sure zeal toward the better development of their section and the obliteration of the darker memories which twine themselves with the sixties; they will also, with an equal degree of conscience and of willingness, address thmselves to the privilege of making secure in the chronicles of men and in the hearts of their children the gallantry and the purity of these men—crowned with a halo that shall grow more radiant with the quiet burnishing of time.

As eye met eye and hand grasped hand at New Orleans yesterday, the sad but unspoken thought was, "Who next?" The spirit of resigned melancholy pervaded the ranks of these glorious old men, ripe in years and honors and fidelity. But the young south today, as ever, takes courage from their stalwart bearing and the beam of chastened hope and strength in their eyes. Knowing their bravery, their lives well spent, their duty well done, it says of them, with admiration, with truth and with love—

"The old brigades march slower now—the boys who wore the gray—
But there's life and battle-spirit in a host o' them today!
They hear their comrades callin' from the white tents far away,
And answer with the ringing roll of 'Dixie.'"

The Atlanta Georgian.

The advent of a newspaper in a city of the size and the importance of Atlanta is always a conspicuous event. The fact is given unusual significance by the splendid auspices attending the birth of The Atlanta Georgian, the mental and the moral force which must be expected from the merging of the strong and able personalities associated in its production, and the careful preparedness which has thus far signalized every movement of its management.

Mr. Graves, its editor, needs no presentation to Atlanta or to the state. He may be expected to maintain the high standards he has set for himself in the pursuit of his ideals.

His associate, Mr. Seely, while not as well known as Mr. Graves, is recognized as a man of business ability and personal force.

It appears that these gentlemen have surrounded themselves with a staff well equipped to enter into the spirit of their enterprise and aid them in the materialization of its success. The first issue of the paper was of an excellence which is only to be anticipated from the enthusiastic cooperation of men well trained in this exacting profession.

The Constitution extends its congratulations and good wishes to the new candidate for journalistic favors. Its entry gives Atlanta four daily newspapers; all well conducted; all staunch and forceful in the policies they believe to be correct, all a unit in the upbuilding of the city and the elevation of its citizenship.

Wage Earning in America vs. Europe.

The department of commerce and labor has lately issued a bulletin which institutes a comparison of the wages paid to labor in the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Belgium. It is hardly necessary to say that a striking difference is shown in favor of American labor. A table is printed in which the comparative figures are shown for twelve principal trades.

In the case of Great Britain, on an average of the twelve trades cited, one hour's work represents approximately 17 1-2 cents of earnings; in the case of Germany, 12 cents, and in the United States, 35 cents per hour. The British employer has to pay, on the average of these trades, 46 per cent more for labor than the German employer pays, while the difference as against the American employer is 191 per cent.

In thirteen years, since 1890, wages have risen on an average 21.8 per cent in Germany; 11.9 per cent in Great Britain, and 20.7 per cent in the United States. There have been industries in which the rise of wages has been considerably higher, but the figures given approximate the general average.

While the purchasing power of money may be greater, as a general proposition, in Europe than in the United States, still, the cost of the common necessaries of life in the way of foodstuffs is no higher, if as high, in the United States than in the European countries named. Naturally this must be so, for the United States is peculiarly an agricultural country, while the nations of Europe, with the exception of Russia, are compelled to import a large per cent of their foodstuffs from the United States. Fresh meat is especially high in Europe—so high that few European workingmen can afford to eat it daily.

While there are many drawbacks to our vaunted prosperity as applied to the wage-earner, nevertheless, the American workingman has reason to congratulate himself that his lot is not cast in Europe.

Hedge and Coat Trimmed.

(From an Exchange.)

Pat MacDonald and Jack Driscoll, of Concord, had for years been bitter enemies. The former took great pride in a beautiful arbor-vitate hedge which separated his estate from Driscoll's. In the fall this hedge, which extended a foot or two over Driscoll's boundary line would wither, and wisps of pine would be scattered about the latter's yard by the wind, much to his displeasure.

He would stand it no longer. One Sunday morning MacDonald was enraged at seeing his enemy clipping off that part of the hedge which lay on his side of the fence, and he vowed revenge.

Now it happened that Driscoll, warming to his work had taken off his coat (his Sunday best) and thrown it upon the hedge. Seeing this, MacDonald took his wife's scissors and rushed to where the coat lay, part on his side of the hedge and part on the other. Without a word he carefully cut off that part which lay on his estate, tucked it under his arm and strode into the house.

It was some time before Driscoll realized what had happened. He and MacDonald are now, however, the best of friends.

Lightnings lash her—thunders scold;

Country keeps a-moving!
Darkness, like a foe in flight,
Sees her sword cleave through the Night!
To the everlasting Light

"Human natur'," said the old man, smoking up.

"An' the eight-day clock man's come to take the clock back."

"Human natur' ag'in, my boy!"

"An' here comes the gallon-jug, from the express office."

"That's human natur', too," said the old man, jumping up. "Jest lemme git two or three good licks at that jug, an' I'll settle the sheriff's hash in two seconds, an' thar won't be enough o' the clock man left to cast a shadder!"

AMERICAN SMACK SEIZED.

Pensacola Fishing Boat Taken by Mexicans of Yucatan Coast.

Washington, April 26.—All of the information received by the state department relative to the seizures of American fishing vessels by Mexican officers was contained in a telegram submitted to the department today by Senator Mallory, of Florida. It stated briefly that it was reported in Pensacola that the smack Sterns of that port had been seized off the coast of Yucatan by Mexican officers on a charge of violation of the fishing laws. The state department forwarded this dispatch to the ambassador at the city of Mexico with instructions to make an investigation into the seizure and to use his good offices in the case.

SUNDAY CONSTITUTION HAS ADDED ROBERT BARR TO LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

First Instalment of His Great Novel, Never Before Published, Will Appear May 6--Something About the Author and His Work.

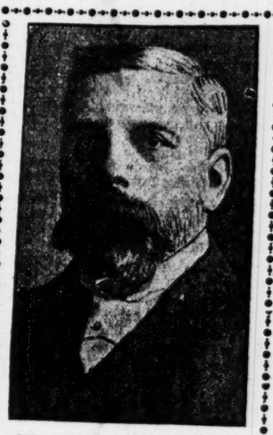
MR. ROBERT BARR, at present editor and chief proprietor of The Idler, is a Canadian, and was at one time on the staff of The Detroit Free Press. That his memories of America are pleasant is shewn in many of his books, notably in "A Woman Intervenes," in which one of the two heroines, an American journalist, figures, though for the sake of the plot she has to appear at first as a temptress and, indeed, almost as a "villainess," yet emerges triumphant at the end, marries one of the two heroes, and saves the situation generally.

Mr. Barr was, in conjunction with Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, the founder of The Idler, now one of the best of the London Magazines, as its current Christmas number testifies. He is pleasantly remembered by all the more noteworthy of London's younger authors and authoresses as one of the witty and genial hosts at the "idle tea parties" which the editor of The Idler are wont to give at the offices of the paper in Henrietta street, London, on Friday afternoons.

Mr. Barr began his career as a journalist, and among his later works are "In a Steamer Chair," "From Which Bourne," "The Face and The Mask," "The Unchanging East," "In the Midst of Alarms," "Revenge," "Tekla" and "The Mutable Many."

The scene of his last book, "The Speculations of John Steele," is laid in America and depicts a long and keen financial battle between the young hero and his adversaries ending in the triumph of youth, when the hero wins the battle and marries the daughter of his most vindictive enemy.

Mr. Barr owns that his chief hobby is photography; but the confession is not to be taken literally; his life-like characters are his own creation and not portraits, or at any rate recognizable portraits of people whom he has met. Every man's friend, he is one of the best loved men in literature.



WORKS OF ROBERT BARR: "Tekla," "The Victors," "The Chicago Princess," "The Mutable Many," "The Strong Arm," "Revenge," "From Whose Bourne," "In a Steamer Chair," "The Speculations of John Steele," "Over the Border," "The Woman Wins," "In the Midst of Alarms," "A Woman Intervenes," "The Face and the Mask," "One Day's Courtship," "Jennie Baxter, Journalist," and "The Unchanging East."

The novel that he has in hand now for the plan of the Authors and Newspapers' Association will be an international romance of love and action, with an ingenious plot holding the reader from start to finish, with stirring scenes in the United States, England and Russia, and an extraordinary incident in the Baltic sea.

It will be called "The Rock in the Baltic," and its first instalment will appear in The Sunday Constitution, May 6.

EDITOR HARDY DISSECTS SMITH'S SPEECH IN THOMAS

(From The Thomasville Times-Enterprise.)

HOKE SMITH has been here. The tumult and the shouting has had time to die away and viewed in the cold light of common sense, not in the heat of impassioned prejudice, many of his arguments will not stand the test.

In the beginning, let all acknowledge the man to be a brainy and powerful orator.

Yet, he is not convincing. This is probably because he lacks the sincerity that lends intensity and that makes for reality. Some of his utterances are palpably absurd and made for effect. For instance, he said that he was not running for governor, did not care for the office, was just waging the people's fight. Nothing more.

The first part of his speech was filled with platitudes, high sounding sentences that any school boy might string together. General charges are very terrifying, but unless they are backed up by proof they carry no conviction to the thoughtful.

Mr. Smith tells of state senators and representatives that had their campaign expenses paid by the corporations, and returned services therefor. Who were those senators and representatives? Was it Senator Hopkins? Was it Representatives Rountree or Singletary or Mitchell? We believe not. Yet, here again Mr. Smith names no names to back his charges. Now, if these things are really true why does he not specify?

Where Was Hoke in 1902?

Mr. Smith was particularly severe upon the administration of Jos. M. Terrell. Yet, why was he not severe upon Joseph four years ago. He knew him then, he supported him then. He said one of the reasons he is running for governor is because Joe Terrell appointed Hamp McWhorter to the supreme bench. Why did he not run against Joe two years ago? The appointment was before his first term expired. Mr. Smith's conscience seems only to have awakened since he acquired thirst for office.

Attack on Railroads.

Mr. Smith talked much about the tariff. A very cunning move, for he was talking to an audience of Georgia democrats opposed to high tariff. But what has the tariff to do with the governorship? Mr. Smith cussed the railroads. Oh, ye gods, how he cussed the railroads. Sitting there in the pleasant court room with the beauty of the spring roses before us, money in our pockets, a good meal awaiting us, we could hardly realize that we were the poor robbed, defrauded babes in the dark and gloomy woods that he pictured us. We had never known what an awful thing a dividend was, until we heard him pronounce the word.

We are glad that things are not as awful as he paints them, for despite his promises of relief, even should he be elected governor, he could not alter the conditions. He must have a legislature with the same ideas. Then again those touching incidents that he quoted of rates from other states, are not in the jurisdiction of the Georgia governor or the Georgia railroad commission, and could not be altered by them.

Candidates' Manner Contrasted.

The majority of the people like to hear other people condemned, we know this from experience. Nine-tenths of the advice we receive about running our newspaper says: "Why don't you roast so-and-so?" The audience delighted in Smith's attacks upon Mr. Howell. But to the thoughful, they were robbed of their force when the clean, dignified speech of the other candidate was remembered, and his explanation of those same things which Smith roared about.

He termed Calhoun the railroad candidate. He made it convenient to forget that Calhoun was the "alliance candidate," supported enthusiastically by Ivey, Thomas county's populist representative at that time.

He sought to muddy the waters by ridiculing Albert Howell, but Albert is not running for governor.

His clever ridicule of Howell's letter to Watson diverted attention from his own dealings in that direction. We have never considered all this talk about Watson as germane to the subject, but there is more evidence of a Smith-Watson deal than there is of any attempt at a Howell-Watson deal.

Disfranchisement.

But it was on disfranchisement that the candidate was weakest. On this point his audience did not agree with him. The people of Georgia are not willing to try this dangerous experiment. They do not need to. Smith fired all his ammunition at a bird already in the hand. He talked much about keeping the negro from voting. We all believe that the negro must be kept down; that the negro must not vote. The only question is the manner to do this, and Hoke's feeble Alabama plan by no means appeals to many as the best plan.

It differs from other plans, only in having four subterfuges instead of two. These may all be declared illegal at any time; they are not even effective. For instance, Booker Washington can vote in Alabama. What would this vote amount to in Georgia?

An Insult to Intelligence.

The statement of the speaker that legal equality, political equality, meant social equality and a mongrel race, was an insult to the intelligence of his audience. He does not believe and there is not a man in his audience that believes that Georgia is in the slightest danger of race amalgamation; if it were, his little Alabama law dodging would not keep us from it. He showed the demagogue by the statement that intermarriages had increased 20 per cent. This sounds big, but in actual numbers, probably does not exceed a dozen.

His enormous egotism showed in a bluster about physical violence. Nobody has threatened him. No one wants to hurt Hokey. This is a cheap trick to gain sympathy.

His charges about the other candidates are puerile. Why, if Colonel Estill is using his check book for improper purposes in his campaign, does not Mr. Smith bring evidence to show it?

The speech was interesting, was lively, was an appeal to passion and prejudice. It lacked reason, it lacked bottom, it lacked strength. It pleased his followers by telling them what they wanted to hear by predicting their victory, but to an unprejudiced ear it did not carry conviction.

WHITEWASH COAT FOR BARNES

Roosevelt's Woman Ejector to Get Postmastership.

Washington, April 26.—The senate committee on postoffices and post roads today agreed to report favorably the nomination of Benjamin Barnes, assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, to be postmaster of Washington. The subcommittee, consisting of Burrows, Carter and Culberson, appointed to investigate protests reported against the advisability of entering upon an investigation, Senator Culberson dissenting. The question of calling for an investigation was then submitted to the full committee. The republicans voted against the investigation and the democrats for it, and it was lost. No roll call was had on the question of reporting the nomination, the former vote showing what the result would be.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

Boston, April 26.—The Shaw Machine Company, manufacturers of textile machinery, with a plant at Lowell, Mass., was placed in the hands of a receiver here today. Liabilities about $240,000.

JUSTICE BECK HEARD AT GRAND

Eloquent Tribute to Heroes of Gray.

Large Crowd Was Present to Hear Address of the Supreme Court Judge, Who Was Introduced by Chief W. R. Joyner.

Old soldiers who in the war of 18[illegible] had worn the uniform of gray, daughters and children of the confederate and hundreds of others who wished to honor the day, were present at the Grand opera house at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the Memorial day exercises began.

After music had been rendered by the orchestra and a short prayer made by Rev. T. P. Cleveland, Judge Marion Beck, of the supreme court, the orator of the day, was introduced by Chief W. R. Joyner, who spoke briefly on the record of Judge Beck and of his father.

In beginning his address Judge Beck thanked Chief Joyner for his complimentary words, but said that he wished to correct two statements. One was that his father was still living, and the other that while he had enlisted as a soldier in the Spanish-American war his regiment had not been allowed to get into action.

Judge Beck's Speech.

"But even if I had been in every fight that took place in the whole Spanish-American war," continued Judge Beck, "I would not dare to mention them in the presence of these old soldiers before me today, who fought in fifty battles and took part in 1,000 skirmishes, at least of which was bloodier than the bloodiest engagement of the recent war.

"It is a splendid thought," said he, "that wherever old confederate veterans live, Memorial exercises are being held, not for the purpose of discussing the question of whether the south or southerners were right in their struggle of the '60s, but to pay a just tribute to the dead.

"You are not asked to forget one single page in the bright history of the south, but you are not here today to try disputes and to settle arguments, but to celebrate the deeds of those who have now rapidly passing away.

"The record of the south since the war must be learned through newspapers and magazines," said Judge Beck, "but the most wonderful story of the Arabian Nights, the wildest story of eastern life, is dull and commonplace compared to the story of the splendid progress of the south since the civil war.

"It is hard to make you children believe that there are any heroes to compare with those armored knights of whom Scott and Froissart write," said Judge Beck addressing the Children of the Confederacy, "and yet if the soldiers in blue at Gettysburg had on the last day of carnage looked down upon all the gallant knights of French and English history and had seen them prepared to charge the hills, they would have smiled in derision. But when they saw the North Carolinians, and the South Carolinians, saw the men led by Pickett about to charge them, they looked upon the earth and the skies as things they might never see again."

Five Periods of War.

Judge Beck declared that the civil war was a great drama, in five stirring acts, so magnificent, so splendid, and so wonderful in interest, that no playwright could ever stage it, no painter accurately describe it, no novelist or historian sketch the deeds of the '60s.

In the first act of the drama the battle of Manassas was the main feature, the call to arms, the march onward to Richmond, and the unexpected result that first great battle forming the plot.

In 1862 victory after victory for the south told of the wonderful courage and fighting quality of the men of the South who were sweeping their opponents before them.

Here Judge Beck eulogized General Gordon, Stuart, and A. P. Hill, who he compared with the Grecian hero who fought in the battle of Troy.

"I understand," continued Judge Beck, "that as next year is the one hundredth anniversary of General Lee's birth, that it is intended to celebrate his memory all over the United States, whereby the old confederate veterans gathered together. I endorse this plan with the amendment, that the memory of Lee be only celebrated where the memory of Jeffrson Davis is likewise honored."

After the address of Judge Beck, Mrs. Henry Jackson, president of the Atlanta chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy presented crosses to twenty-nine confederate veetrans.

Says the Body Is Opposed to Politics Being Injected Into It. Economic Questions to Be Considered by the Union.

The Georgia division of the Farmers' Union held its first session in the hall of representatives yesterday, and the programme published in yesterday's Constitution was carried out.

Many excellent papers were discussed, and some matters of great interest to the farmers were taken up. Among the questions discussed was the purchase and use of fertilizers. It was stated that a movement is on foot by the members of the union to build factories of their own for the manufacture of fertilizers.

Addresses were made by President Barrett and State Lecturer T. E. Pinegar, of Alabama.

The following committees were named by President Barrett:

The union will be in session today and tomorrow. Before leaving the city the members will take a trolley ride, and view the interesting points about the city.

Mr. Pinegar's Address.

The following was the address of State Lecturer Pinegar of Alabama:

"Mr. President, and Members of the Georgia State Union: Today is a happy period in my life, because I bring greetings from the farmers of Alabama to those of Georgia.

"Today marks an epoch in the history of this state, because delegates from the different counties of Georgia are here in attendance upon a meeting of the only purely farmers' organization in the world. Then, inasmuch as you are here as delegates, what should be your aim, and what should the people of the several counties of this, as well as other states, expect of you as delegates?

"You should aim to do all you can to carry out the plans and purposes of this union which has and will yet prove of great benefit to not only the membership, but to the people en masse.

"You are delegates, hence members, of an organization that has muzzled the bear in his den and wrested from him a fair price for cotton, the chief product of the south, and by so doing it has given the farmer a competence for his labor instead of a bare existence. Had it not been for this organization, doubtless instead of peace and plenty, we would have seen suffering in many homes in this state. I am told the farmers of Georgia are more prosperous than at any time before. Such condition has been brought about by putting into force the principles of the Farmers' Union.

"The work done by this organization and the consequent good is marvelous, and could have been done only by its members doing their part well. As a matter of fact, you have all worked, each having done his or her duty, without which the amount of work done could not have been accomplished. But the great responsibility, also the great burden, of the work, has fallen upon your state officers, who have not stopped to ask, 'Is it beneficial to me as an individual?' or 'Am I able to do the work?' or any such question, but whose every thought has been, not of self, but will it benefit the union, and is the work needed? I tell you, men, such work as has been done by Barrett and Duckworth could not have been done had they not been prompted by an intense love for the farmers of this state, and you should show them your appreciation of their work by attending strictly to business and speaking words of encouragement.

"Another thing, you should aim at nothing rash, but your actions should be prompted by love for humanity, ever having faith in the righteousness of your cause. You should aim at equal rights for the tillers of the soil. While this world does not owe us a living, yet it does owe the farmer an equal opportunity with a man of any other calling to secure an honest living, and for such equal chance you should, as delegates, aim and labor until the world shall acknowledge the farmer's calling is as honored as that of any other man."

Richardson Is Nominated.

Decatur, Ala., April 26.—The democratic executive committee of the eighth congressional district met here today and declared Congressman William R. Richardson the nominee for congress, no opposition having developed against him.

Great Scandal Caused.

St. Petersburg, April 24.—A great scandal has been caused by the premature publication of the draft of the new "fundamental law" of "constitution" of Russia. The emperor has ordered an investigation to determine how the news leaked out.

PRESIDENT OF FARMERS' UNION MAKES INTERESTING ADDRESS

The leading feature of the yesterday's session of the Georgia division of the Farmers' union was the annual address of the president.

President C. S. Barrett, of Thomaston, made one of the most able addresses that has ever been delivered on a similar topic. He answered many important questions that had been asked concerning the union, and gave much good advice to the hundreds of farmers who were present.

President Barrett's address was as follows:

"At the threshold of our deliberations it gives me pleasure to extend greeting to the second annual state meeting of the Farmers' union of eGorgia. This meetings occurs under conditions justifying sincere congratulations and calling for our grateful acknowledgement to a Providence which has so blessed us as an organization

"Peace, good will, brotherly love and a determination to succeed reign in the hearts of the true union men of Georgia. That class of men that belong to the rule or ruin class are not yet in the ranks of the eGorgia union men. I do not say this out of flattery, which is far from being my vice, but from my real sense and opinion.

"This meeting today means a great deal to the farmers of our beloved state. Presented to this body are great opportunities, and if we aim only at the union's good we cannot err, and we should ever keep in mind that the foundation of our order is the golden rule, and its superstructure determination.

Agricultural Education.

"Agriculture, as the foundation of the means of living and as connected with the state of society and with the civil and intellectual character of a people deserves a high degree of attention. It has been a commanding object of pursuit with all civilized nations from the beginning, but it is only to be remarked here that in very recent times has peculiar attention been bestowed on the subject. Indeed the business in the hands of scintific practical farmers has assumed a sysematic arrangement unknown in former days.

"The best of opportunities await us if we will only study agriculture. It behooves us to intellectually fit ourselves for farming as do the professions men for their respective vocations, and we should ever keep alive to the fact that ignorance is the great enemy of the producer.

Arbitration.

"It is contrary to the spirit of our order for members to go to law with each other, and I earnestly recommend arbitration among the brethren as much as possible. No matter calls more urgently for the wisest thought of this convention

Help the Unfortunates.

"That feature of our organization which provides for attention to the sick, the widow and the orphan is worth more than it cost to maintain membership in the union. Let us be charitable, expressing our love and friendship by going down into our pockets.

Beware of the Chronic Fault Finder.

"If the Union succeeds it will be necessary for us to have confidence in each other. We must work together as one great family. We can't succeed until we do this and the man who is continually making insinuations without fixing a charge on some person against whom he can prove his statements is an enemy of the order."

The Contrary Member.

"If you should find in your midst a member who is forever creating discord and will not yield to the will of the majority turn him out.

"I hope your Union will not be afflicted with one of those contentious jacks who would destroy the Union in his effort to carry through his contracted idea. You will observe that the men who do the real work are less disposed to find fault."

Politics.

"There are editors and politicians today who would keep the masses in ignorance concerning the world's economic progress, as well as ignorant of the existance of the greatest farmer's organization on earth, and when they cease to ignore the Farmer's Union they will resort to the usual ridicule of those who champion its cause, or they will pretend to favor it with a view to getting in and stirring up strife.

"The politician will appear so anxious to keep the Union out of politics that he will object to the discussion of questions of public policy for fear of free and full discussion of such questions might hurt the party through which he expects to secure favors.

"The Farmer's Union is being a non-partisan organization is not debarred from expressing a wish concerning the settlement of some of the economic questions of the hour. You should claim your share of consideration of our law makers.

"Eleven months ago I was elected your president, and with a grateful heart I went into the work, faithfully giving my time and the means that I could employ in building up the Farmer's Union. I have, during the past year, visited many county and local unions in different parts of the state. To my regret I was unable to accept many of the kind invitations.

"Most of the unions which I had the pleasure of visiting are in splendid condition. On last Saturday I visited Ausley, in Wilcox county, for the purpose of organizing a county union. Several hundred were there assembled. I had the pleasure of addressing the people and organizing one of the best county unions in America.

"In Georgia, from five thousand we have grown to nearly forty thousand; from three hundred local unions we have grown to eight hundred. The more than six thousand farmer's union men of our county constitute a great army of progress and enlightenment. Having visited many portions of the state and nation I am glad to deliver to you today this message of encouragement, which I am sure will cause us to be more determined to do all that in us lies for the cause so near our hearts.

"But, while we thus rejoiceat the great rosperity which our order is enjoying in this country, sorrow mingles with joy; heh sunshine is darkened by black shadows.

"On the eleventh day of this month at his home in Point, Texas, Newt Gresham, the founder of the Farmers' Union, passed away. He was buried the next day by the union brethren and Woodmen of the World. His untimely demise has saddened the hearts of union people throughout this land. For more than a year Brother Gresham had been in failing health. Notwithstanding this fact, he was unremitting in his labors for the union and devoted to the order almost his entire time for several years past.

Decisions.

"During the year I have answered some seven or eight hundred questions pertaining to union law. Most of these questions were readily answered by a reference to or citation from the law as laid down in the constitution.

"I append herewith a very small number of decisions rendered by me, because it would be a useless expenditure of time and space to enumerate all the decisions rendered.

"Many of the questions propounded related to qualifications to membership. Some of the brethren seem to have an idea that if the applicant is a good man and a good citizen and would make a worthy union member, that there should be an exception made in his favor, notwithstanding theh fact that he is engaged in an occupation prohibited by the constitution.

"I have been asked many times such questions as these: Is a farmer who owns a little country store eligible to membership?

"I have uniformly answered that he is not.

"Is a man who is president or vice president of a bank but devotes most of his time to his farm eligible?

"Answer, No.

"Should a member be excluded from the union who violates a law of the land involving moral teprtitude?

"Answer, He should.

"If a member is charged with a non-payment of dues and he fails to appear at the trial is it necessary for the lodge to vote on the question of his guilt or innocence?

"Answer, Yes."

HOME OF IDEA PAYS TRIBUTE

Columbus Citizens in Large Numbers Observe Memorial Day.

Columbus, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—The entire population of Columbusunited this afternoon in paying a tribute to the memory of the confederate dead. The observance of Memorial day in this city, where the custom originated forty years ago today, becomes more heartfelt with the passage of time, and this year the exercises held under the auspices of the Ladies' Memorial Association were, if anything, attended more largely than usual. Springer opera house, where a programme of exercises was carried out, was crowded, and thousands went to Riverdale and Linwood cemeteries, where the grave of every confederate soldier was decorated. Salutes were fired over the grave of the soldier dead by the local military, the Columbus Guards and City Light Guards.

At the opera house a magnificent address was delivered by Rev. I. S. McElroy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. A charming musical programme was carried out, features being the singing of "The Old Time Confederate" by the veterans and audience, and the playing in splendid manner of selections by the boys' band of the Georgia Industrial home at Macon, which was secured for Columbus for this special occasion. This is the second time this band has played in Columbus this year.

Confederate crosses of honor were given out by Miss Anna C. Benning, president of Lizzie Rutherford chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy.

The procession through the streets of the city was a long one, there being in line a platoon of police, military, band Veterans, Sons of Veterans, mayor and aldermen, members of the Ladies' Memorial Association, Daughters of the Confederacy, Children of the Confederacy, and citizens in carriages. Captain T. Jeff Bates was the marshal of the day, his aides being G. J. Peacock, J. S. Matthews, Dr. C. L. Williams, H. R. Goetchius, Richard Howard, Cecil Neill, Frank Lumpkin and Frank Garrard.

Tigers Fail to Appear.

The game which was to have been played between the Peachtree Champions and the once de Leon Tigers at the Tenth street grounds yesterday afternoon, did not come off, as the result of the failure of the Tigers to appear, states Captain Howell Foreman, of the Champions.

How would you like to have an active staff of ten thousand salesmen?

An energetic man could possibly call upon fifty people in a day, or 350 people in a week, and tell them briefly why they ought to buy your goods.

If you had 10,000 salesmen they could see 3,500,000 people per week. If this were done don't you think your business would go forward by leaps and bounds?

Isn't it clear that a demand would thus be created that would make it necessary for you to greatly increase your factory capacity? If the expense were not so great you would probably be eager to put such a plan into operation.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST has the selling power of 10,000 salesmen. It reaches 3,500,000 people every week. It is not an intrusive caller, but a welcome guest. It is bought, not given away. For a moderate sum the story of your goods can be placed before this vast army 52 times a year.

CHINESE EXCLUSION LAWS.

Less Stringent Measures Favored by Cotton Mill Men.

Boston, April 26.—On the ground that annoyances to which Chinese merchants and other prominent Chinamen are subjected on arrival here, are directly responsible for the killing of American missionaries and the boycotting of American cotton exports in China, resolutions calling for a less stringent interpretation of the Chinese exclusion laws were adopted by the National Association of Manufacturers today. The sentiment, as indicated by the debate on the resolution, was that the whole of the alleged trouble over Chinese exclusion might be remedied by more liberal interpretation of the law. Resolutions also were adopted indorsing the creation of a national forest reserve on the Appalachian and the White mountains.

BUSINESS MEN TO MEET TUESDAY

Plans Laid for a Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Headquarters Will Be Established and Every Effort Made to Bring Trade to Atlanta. Campaign to Begin in Earnest.

Next Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. in the chamber of commerce the business men of Atlanta will formally organize the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, the purpose of which will be the protection and advancement of local commercial and industrial interests.

It is proposed to attract trade to Atlanta, generally, and to each member specially by generous advertising in the press and other methods, such as the establishing of headquarters, centrally located, where the out-of-town buyers can register, rest, wash, write, meet their friends, have mail and packages sent, obtain information concerning the members and Atlanta generally.

It is further proposed to give periodical half rate excursions, semi-annual banquets, entertainments of various kinds to visiting merchants and also make them honorary members, and, in short, make an aggressive campaign for new business and keep it up until every buyer, wholesale or retail, in southern territory comes to Atlanta to do his buying.

This organized effort will do wonders for Atlanta's trade and no progressive merchant can afford not to be a member of this association.

Every merchant in Atlanta is invited to attend the meeting next Tuesday.

POLICE MATRON MAD AT CAPTAIN

She May Prosecute Moon for Libel.

Moon Said Matron Sent Young Girls to Houses of Prostitution, and That Made the Matron Very Angry—Status of the Row.

The differences between Police Matron Bohnefeld and Captain Z. B. Moon, of the police force, is about to get into the courts, as Mrs. Bohnefeld is talking about prosecuting the captain for libel because he stated to a reporter of The Constitution that she had sent young girls from the police barracks to houses of prostitution.

In his statement in yesterday's Constitution Captain Moon said that he could furnish proof that the police matron had sent girls away from the protection of her department to houses of questionable character.

The matron has spoken of retaining Attorney Walter McElreath, who defended Officer Tibbs during the row between Tibbs and Captain Moon about two years ago.

To say that the matron is mad is to express it mildly. She declined, however, to make any statement yesterday to newspaper reporters

Say He Has the Proof.

Captain Moon reiterates his statement that Mrs. Bohnefeld's charges against him are without foundation and that he will be able to prove that his staement is true. He does not retract anything he has said about the police matron, and says he will proably prefer charges against her and let the board investigate the whole matter.

Chief Jennings took no action in the affair yesterday on account of Memorial Day exercises. He will probably do so today.

A copy of Mrs. Bohnefeld's charges will be furnished Captain Moon and he will file his answer. When this is done, the chief will confer with Chairman Terry, of the police board, and a trial of the captain will probably be ordered. The chief can suspend the captain pending a trial if he sees fit to do so.

If the captain prefers charges against the matron the two trials will probably occur at the same time.

The college was founded in 1881 by the negroes of Georgia. Students are in attendance from 28 states of the union and from Africa, Cuba, Jamaica and Bermuda, numbering about 1,000 in all.

The Extraordinary Career of an American Heiress.

Miss Dorothy Amhurst, the famed Bar Harbor beauty, who attracted considerable notice through her unexpected inheritance of $15,000,000, and her subsequent strange disappearance, has returned to America, and the account of her adventures during the several months of her absence is on a par with an Arabian Night's tale for absorbing interest and incredible episode.

Her absence was connected with the baffling mystery surrounding the kidnaping of Prince Lermantoff of Russia and the vanishing of Alan Drummond, of His British Majesty's navy. Although the whole matter has not heretofore been made public, it is now set forth in vivid, interest-compelling fashion by Robert Barr, the great English novelist, in his latest and best novel, "A Rock in the Baltic."

"A Rock in the Baltic" is a bit of epoch-making fiction that will be in everybody's library within three months of its publication. It is the first of a series of twelve great novels by the foremost living writers, which are to be published during the forthcoming year.

This is the celebrated "$150,000 series" which the Authors and Newspapers' Association is about to bring out. The Sunday Constitution has been chosen by the Association to make public the forthcoming remarkable series. The Sunday Constitution has secured the exclusive serial rights to each novel for the city and surrounding territory, and will thus be enabled to issue each of the stories serially before it appears in book form. All orders for papers containing installments of any of these novels should be given in advance to newsdealers or carriers, as the edition is sure to be sold out. "A Rock in the Baltic" commences May 6.

Ballard, who has hitherto held no public office, but who is regarded as one of the most substantial citizens of the county. The primary comes off May 8.

FARNER C. JOHNSTON, KNOWN extensively among the railroad men of Atlanta and popular with Atlantans of other lines with whom he has been associated for nearly a quarter of a century passed, is quite sick at his home on Hulsey street near Magnolia. Mr. Johnston was thrown from a freight car upon which he was working in the Western and Atlantic yards about three weeks ago, and was severely hurt about his back. A few days later a well-defined case of pneumonia developed, and for a short time his condition was considered critical by his attending physician, Dr. Hancock. He was given the best possible care and attention by the members of his family and his physicians. He will have many a glad hand and many a pleasant smile when he is able to be upon the streets again.

THEATERS.

The two performances of "Gay New York" brought capacity audiences to the Bijou yesterday. A splendid sum was realized from the matinee for the 'Frisco sufferers, and this will be turned over today to the proper person to forward immediately to 'Frisco.

"Gay New York" is certainly scoring a well deserved hit and from present indications the standing room sign will be displayed during the balance of the engagement.

Dan Mason is a host in himself; his work is clever and original and there is a laugh coming whenever the comedian is before the footlights. Mr. Mason is ably assisted by Miss Lillian Hoerlein, Louise Sanford, Charles Foreman, Kathryn Bartlett, E. B. Adams, Edward Beannen, Joseph Willard and the prettiest bunch of chorus girls that have graced a local stage in some time.

There will be just three more performances, including the matinee Saturday afternoon, and those who would see the clever musical comedy should secure their seats at once.

"The Belle of Avenue A."

The press agent of "The Belle of Avenue A," which comes to the Bijou next week, has neglected one thing in his announcements. Everywhere posters are to be seen telling of the merits of the attraction and of its star, Miss Elfie Fay. The men in charge of the publicity department has mentioned a company of sixty-three people and a production requiring two cars for transportation, but there is one actor with the organization whose name as yet, has not appeared in print. When Miss Fay's support was being contracted for there was a regular legal contract drawn up for the monkey. Whether he signed it or not is another question, but by the terms of the agreement Heine is to receive in return for his services the sum of 24 cents a performance. As Miss Fay's companion lives at the best hotels and is a regular epicure it would seem as though he had made a mistake in accepting this salary, but when stage struck, one is willing to sacrifice much for the glare of the footlights. He is, of course, a comedian and a remarkably good one, too.

Star Theater.

A packed house greeted the attraction at the Star Theater last night and judging from the applause that was accorded the different numbers, they were highly pleased. The bill is a good one, two or three of the vaudeville specialties are among the best seen in Atlanta this season.

BIJOU MATINEE MAKES BIG SUM

San Francisco Fund Was Increased by $553.10.

The benefit matinees given by the "Gay New York" company at the Bijou yesterday afternoon to aid the sufferers in San Francisco was a great success, clearing $553.10. This sum will be forwarded at once to the proper authorities.

Manager DeGive was greatly pleased by the splendid total cleared by the matinee. It was made possible by the mat- of the chorus girls, who sold box seats for $5 each and raised the price of other seats.

More money was handed to Treasurer E. H. Thornton yesterday to help swell the fund raised in Atlanta for the sufferers from the California earthquake. The new subscriptions were:

J. Lee Barnes, proprietor of the Aragon, has announced that he will donate 40 per cent of the receipts of his cafe next Saturday from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. This, under ordinary circumstances, would be a handsome donation, but as the public will doubtless assist him by extra patronage, the contribution may become a munificent one.

Three telegrams were received in Atlanta yesterday telling of the safety of those who have relatives in this city. One was from John M. Keith, brother of Charlie Keith; another from John D. Calhoun, brother of Colonel W. Lowndes Calhoun. Both stater they were safe in Oakland.

Frederick F. Lyden and wife, Mrs. Annie Wilson Lyden, wired Dr. Henry L. Wilson that they were safe and well in San Francisco.

KNOX GARDNER CAN'T BE FOUND

The Young Business Man's Friends Are Uneasy About Him.

Macon, Ga., April 26.—(Special.) Friends of Knox Gardner, who late in January of the present year completed a business education in Macon, are making a close search for him and believe he has met with foul play. He left the offices of L. C. Millier in Danville early Tuesday morning and has not been heard from. He was a stenographer there and was in good circumstances.

He had been ill and it is feared that mental derangement caused the mysterious disappearance. Police authorities and officers here have been engaged in the search with no favorable results up to the present. He is 19 years of age and has dark eyes and hair.

It is a lachrymose and lovely story. More since Nashville earned her victory. Score Nashville 3, Atlanta 1.

And there are only a few to whom it will be news.

Looked as if everybody was on hand. Lots of men with their wives. Office boys and their bosses.

Most everybody.

And the younger fans brought their belles out to watch the ball, hoping to show them how easily Atlanta can win. Atlanta didn't.

Bill and his firecrackers tied the score up in the eighth and made it 1 and 1, but in the ninth Nashville put the clamps to the game and now the contest is stored safely away on the winning side of Mike Finn's percentage.

And the Firecrackers took a drop in percentage.

Finn's followers flirted with the first run of the game, that tally appearing on the Nashville side of the score board in the eighth. Up to that time neither side had been near the plate, Harley for Atlanta and Sorrell for Nashville working in great form.

Nashville Scores First.

The initial tally for B. Stafford and his club mates came whn Parson doubled. George Kalkhoff, ex-Atlantan, followed the double with a single, sending aforesaid Pearson to third. Sorrell hit a line drive to short, which was too hot for any human to handle. Parson score by peart pedaling. Ex-Firecracker Kalkhoff kicked up the dust around third. Gilbert hit to Whitey and Sorrell was nipped at second, Morse to Jordan. Wiseman flew out to Winters and Kalkhoff tried to come home on the throw. Winters' relay was too strong for the catcher, however, and "Kal" was caught at the home corner. Tidy double play, and strong stunt by "Ginger" Winters.

After Sorrell had downed two men in Atlanta's end of the eighth, Sid Smith rapped out a swat that was a swell affair. Castro was good for a miscue when Whitey Morse hit in his direction, and "Kid" Smith landed on second. Old "Ginger" Winters was the goods with his larruper and lost the ball for a single. "Kid" Smith came home and the score was like a cows tail full of cockle burrs Jim Fox took three nicks in the weather and retired the side.

There were groans in the grandstand, bewailing in the bleachers, sorrow in the smokers and fury in the field, when Nashville combed out the burrs and won the game in a whirlwind wind-up.

Castro flew out to Ed Pleiss to start the ninth. Then big Bob Stafford butted in with his bludgeon and banged a two sacker. Bohanan boosted Bob with a single, sending him all the way home, and going to second on the throw in home himself. [redacted] who resembles a chameleon in build, flew out to W. Morse. Pearson had another swat in his bat and he uncorked it just in time to send Bohanan home from second.

But Atlanta Had Opportunities.

Those last two counts saw Atlanta's finish and gave Nashville the s cond game of the series.

This doesn't mean Atlanta didn't have a look in. The Firecrackers had chances galore, and there were times when a hit by an Atlanta batter would have cinched the game for the locals. With two men on bases and two men out in the sixth, G. Winters with a hit would have brought in enough scores to cop the game, but "Ginger" didn't have the hit at that time, saving it till later.

The game tomorrow will be called at 3:30 as has been usual with the exception of Memorial day. Burnum will work for Atlanta and Geyer will probably send 'em across the platter for the visitors.

Today is ladies' day at Piedmont. Here it is condensed for your scrapbook:

BAPTISTS HERE FOR TWO GAMES

Mercer Baseball Team Is Stronger Than Ever Before.

Encouraged by her splendid showing in the recent games with Clemson, one of which was a victory and the other a thirteen-inning tie, Mercer will face Tech at Tech park this afternoon, determined to get an even break from the Yellow Jackets.

Owing to the number of new men on the team and the lack of confidence in their own ability, Mercer made a poor record in the first few games played, but in the last week or so the men have picked up wonderfully and have been playing high-class ball.

The work of the Tech team is known to every baseball fan in Atlanta. The boys coached in diamond ways by Coach Heisman have won ten games out of twelve played.

More than usual interest attaches to these games played today and tomorrow on account of the fact that both are championship contests, and will count in the race for the baseball supremacy of the State College League.

At present Tech has won two games and lost one; Georgia has won one and lost one, and Mercer has lost one to Tech. Mercer was beaten by Georgia, but the game was an exhibition contest, and id not count in the fight for the state flag.

Heisman will very probably work out Lafitte this afternoon, as Day is still crippled by a weak ankle, and Butler is needed in the outfield.

Mercer will very probably use Shannon or Smith.

GUESE BLEW UP IN FIFTH INNING

New Orleans Could Never Overcome Little Rock's Lead.

New Orleans, April 26.—Little Rock landed on Guese in the fifth inning this afternoon and although the Pelicans put up a game finish, they could not overcome the lead. Little Rock won by 6 to 4. Umpire Pfenninger came in for sharp criticism from both sides. McKean was put out for kicking. Score:

FOUR OUTSIDERS CAPTURE MONEY

Good Day for Bookmakers at Memphis Track.

Only Two Favorites Won, One of Them Being at Prohibitive Odds. Yankee Girl Heavily Played, but Didn't Finish Inside the Money.

Memphis, April 26.—Only two favorites won, one at prohibitive odd, finished first today. The other four events went to outsiders and the bookmakers had their first really good inning. In the third race the public backed Ellison's Yankee Girl down to 3 to 5 at post time, but she did not finish inside of the money. Harmakis, another hot favorite, failed to finish in the money in the fourth race. The surprise of the day came in the fifth at one mile, when after Nathaniel, the extreem outsider, beat Charlatan the heavily played favorite by a head in a driving finish. There were no stake events on today's card and the horses starting today were of ordinary quality. Summary:

First Race—Sell, one mile: Klingsor, 112, Dugan, 6 to 1, won; Rustling Silk, 92 Balac, 15 to 1, second; Bitter Brown, 90, Moreland, 15 to 1, third. Time, 1:45. Rolla, Ternus, Miss Leeds, Profane, Etta M., Letty, Scalp Lock, Massive, Pride of Woodstock, Globe Runner, Townes and Lena J. ran.

GREAT GAME IS EXPECTED

Barnesville, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—One of the greatest baseball games of the season is expected when the Robert E. Lee institute nine comes over to play the Gordon Institute team. The game will be played Monday, April 30.

There is more rivalry between these two teams than between any other amateur teams in the state. The two nines are about evenly matched, and the battle will be fought fiercely from start to finish.

The game will be played in the new ball park here, and hundreds are expected.

Sewane 8, Nashville 6.

Sewanee, Tenn., April 26.—(Special.)—Sewanee, after defeating Cumberland last week 14 to 4 and 6 to 0, today managed to win from the University of Nashville in a ragged game, 8 to 6. Sonel, in the box for the purple, was not in best form, and his support was at times lurid. Nashville hit often and hard, and only the pitted-up errors gave Sewanee the game. Stone fanned five batters! McCown four. Sewanee tried hard to throw the game away in the third, but was unsuccessful. Lassiter, Seay, Floyd and Coleman were the hitters for Nashville; White and Captain Wheat starred for the purple. Two more games are to be played tomorrow and Saturday.

WALTER G. HODGES, REAL ESTATE.

The Largest and Best Equipped Real Estate Agency in the City of Meridian.

Investments in real estate in and around Meridian, Miss., in the past have brought such good returns to those placing their funds that I frequently hear inquiries made in my travels in relation to locality and kind of property in which it would be likely to pay best to place one's money, and also through what agency. To answer these inquiries in a fair and impartial manner would seem rather out of the line of a newspaper reporter's province, but this is passable to direct the attention of interested parties to the largest, best equipped and most progressive real estate agency in the city of Meridian. I refer to that of Walter G. Hodges, whose offices are located in the Citizens' Bank building. Mr. Hoges' facilities are of the broadest character and he is able to offer inducements to buyers and execute commissions from both sellers and buyers to a far greater advantage than is possible with smaller and less favored agencies. He always has a large list of suburban and city property for sale or rent, comprising in the rental department over 175 houses. Also some choice bargains in improved city properties. Mr. Hodges invites the attention of investors of the large and sure profits that the near future will develop from an investment in Meridian real estate at the present time; he is a broad gauge business man of comprehensive ideas and thoroughly imbued with the bright future of Meridian real estate, and his advice and valuable judgment are cheerfully accorded to all inquirers.

MANAGER SMITH USES BIG AXE

Releases Pleiss Outright and Sells Tiebald to Charleston.

In view of the fact that he has to cut his club down to a team of fourteen players Manager Smith last night sold Third Sacker Pete Tiebald to Charleston, released Eddie Pleiss, outfield, outright, and has a deal on foot whereby Paul S. "Dummy" Curtis, pitcher, will be sold to Macon or Charleston, probably Macon.

Another player left the local fold last night besides the three named, but this last man will be back as soon as possible. The man is Eugene Curtis, the big outfielder. Eugene has been called to the bedside of a dying relative, and will be absent from roll call for a week or more.

The large-sized sign on the back fence of Piedmont park which has been troubling the players since their return from their short trip, will be blotted out tomorrow, according to Manager Smith.

When the signs were first placed on the fence it was decided to leave a green space without any fancy work on the fence directly in front of the batters' eye. When the painter left the green space he made a miscue and put the space too far over to the right, and it doesn't help the players' peepers a bit.

Manager B. Smith himself will jump into the contest today and see what he can do in the winning line.

Montgomery Manager Assaulted Buckley in the Ninth Inning.

Birmingham, Ala., April 26.—Birmingham defeated Montgomery this afternoon in a game marred by wrangling in the ninth inning. He was escorted off the field by policemen, and placed under a $50 bond on a change of assault and battery. The game was devoid of any brilliant plays. # BANKERS OF TWO STATES TO MEET HERE IN JUNE

Joint Session of Banking Association of Georgia-Florida Comes to Atlanta--Group Three of Georgia Association Met Yesterday.

GROUP No. 3 of the Georgia Bankers' Association met yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club, F. T. Hardwick, of Dalton, Ga., chairman of the group, calling the meeting to order at 10:30 o'clock.

In the meeting were delegates from forty-nine of Georgia's leading banks, and in the general discussion following the formal programme there were many expressions of satisfaction in the group system adopted by the Georgia association at the joint meeting with the Florida bankers at Atlantic Beach, Fla., last June.

Joint Session in June.

A telegram was read by Mrs. Orme from Edward Wood Lane, president of the Florida Bankers' Association, accepting for the Florida bankers the invitation of the Atlanta Clearing House Association to meet here in June. The Georgia Bankers' Association in accepting the same invitation for the same time, June 11 and 12, will, in their joint session with the Florida bankers, carry out the principle of the interstate annual meetings, which, in their cooperative spirit, are in line with the advanced movements in the banking organizations of the time.

The first day the two associations will meet separately, and on the second day there will be the joint sessions bringing the two associations together for the discussions of their mutual interests.

The members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association will be the hosts of the visiting bankers and the president of the association, Mr. McCord, will appoint committees to arrange for the convention.

Chairman Hardwick's Address.

In his opening address Mr. Hardwick explained the object of the group system, and outlined the plan of the work ahead.

Heretofore the members of the Georgia Bankers' Association have met in annual session, but the increase of membership and the many questions of local, state, interstate and national import that came up for discussion at these annual meetings suggested the advisability of some system whereby the interests of the different sections of the state might be presented in more concentrated form, and be more directly acted upon.

Accordingly the group system was adopted and the Georgia members divided geographically into six groups, these each to have their permanent chairmen, and to meet at some time of the year, previous to the annual meeting.

Operation of the Group System.

J. H. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of Rome, made an interesting address on the operations of the group system, setting ofrth its advantages to the individual bank, as well as to the general interest of the banking business of the state. He referred to its success in all associations adopting it, and gave valuable suggestions as to its operation in Georgia.

The group three includes the banks centering in the following counties: Dade, Walker, Catoosa, Whitfield, Murray, Fannin, Union, Towns, Rabun, Habersham, White, Lumpkin, Gilmer, Gordon, Chattooga, Pickens, Dawson, Hall, Campbell, Forsyth, Cherokee, Bartow, Floyd, Polk, Paulding, Cobb, Fulton, Milton, DeKalb, Gwinett, Carroll, Haralson, Douglas, Rockdale, Newton, Coweta, Fayette, Clayton and Henry.

Among the banks sending delegates to yesterday's meeting were Lemon Banking Company of Adamsville, Bank of Adamsville, Atlanta National bank, Farmers and Traders' bank, Atlanta; Fourth National bank, Lowry National bank, Maddox-Rucker Banking Company, Neal bank, Third National bank, Bank of Bremen, Bremen, Ga.; Bank of Buford, Buford, Ga.; Carrollton bank, Carrollton; First National bank, Cartersville; Bank of Cedartown, Commercial bank, Cedartown; Habersham bank, Clarkesville; Bank of Rockdale, Conyers; Bank of Covington, Covington; Clark Banking Company, Covington; Bank of Cumming, Cumming; Bank of Dallas, Dallas; First National bank, Dalton; C. L. Hardwick & Co., Dalton; Douglasville Banking Company, Douglasville; Bank of Fairburn, Fairburn; Fairburn Banking Company, Fairburn; Bank of Fayetteville, Fayetteville; First National bang, Gainesville; State Banking Company, Gainesville; Bank of Grantville, Grantville; Bank of Jonesboro, Jonesboro; Bank of Lawrenceville, Lawrenceville; Bank of Henry County, McDonough; First National bank, Marietta; Marietta Trust and Banking Company, Marietta; First National bank, Newnan; Citizens' bank, Rome; Exchange bank, Rome; First National bank, Rome; Farmers and Merchants' bank, Senoia; Bank of Commerce, Summerville; First National bank, Tallapoosa; First National bank, Toccoa; Bank of Villa Rica, Villa Rica.

Papers Read.

Two papers bringing out discussion and applauded as most helpful in their suggestions were those of C. S. Thompson, secretary of Group 3, and cashier of the Bank of Covington; his theme, "Country Bank Advertising," while the closing address was made by J. A. McCord, of the Third National bank, president of the Atlanta Clearing house, his subject being: "Closer Relations Between the Georgia Country and City Banker."

Among those taking part in the general discussion, embracing the question of Georgia's industrial development in relation to Georgia banks, were Joseph T. Orme, of the Lowry National bank, president of the Georgia Association; J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank; Messrs. Pitts, of Cedartown; Fonchet, of Rome, and Calhoun, of Cartersville.

Luncheon Served.

At the conclusion of the meeting yesterday morning there was an informal luncheon served at the Driving Club, Mr. McCord presiding. A number of informal speeches were made, prominent figures in Georgia's banking world responding to calls for their opinions on various subjects dealing with banking interests—local, state and national.

Among the speakers were Colonel Robert J. Lowry, A. P. Coles, Joseph T. Orme, J. K. Ottley, Messrs. Anderson, of Marietta; Seman, of Acworth; Pattilo, of Buford.

After luncheon the visiting bankers were guests of their Atlanta friends at the baseball game boxes reserved for them during the afternoon.

In the evening the courtesies of the Capital City Club were extended to the visitors.

FINE CEREMONY MARKS THE DAY

Dr. Landrum Was the Orator at Covington.

Covington, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—Most impressive ceremonies graced the day at Covington. Already a beautiful city, her beauty has been finely set off by a white bronze statute rising upon a base of Georgia granite, erected in Central park, by funds raised in Newton county, to the memory of the confederate dead, many of whom lie buried in her cemetery.

The parade, which was under the direction of Dr. W. D. Travis, marshal of the day, was the longest and finest from every point of view that has been witnessed here for a number of years.

The exercises began with prayer by Dr. G. W. Yarbrough. The monument was then unveiled by Miss Mattie Heard, daughter of Captain G. D. Heard, the only surviving captain of the confederacy in Newton county.

After a song, "The Jacket of Gray" by a quartet composed of Mrs. Joseph E. Bogle, Mrs. P. W. Godfrey and I. K. and C. J. Norman, Captain James M. Pace, in an eloquent speech, introduced the orator of the day, Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Atlanta.

Address of Dr. Landrum.

Dr. W. W. Landrum, captain and chaplain, Firs tregiment cavalry, national guard of Georgia, spoke in part as follows:

"We gather here on a holy day in the confederate calendar to interpret the meaning of this cenotaph erected by southern patriotism to commemorate the dauntless deeds of southern gallantry done on the ensanguined fields of war. We are to recall for a moment the heroism and consecration and devotion of those who died for us and bequeathed as a legacy, their unsullied honor and imperishable renown.

"What mean ye by this stone? Who was this confederate soldier whom you ask the present generation and all posterity to admire and imitate? Why should he be forever enshrined in our heart of hearts as an ideal and an inspiration?

"First of all remember what he was not. No mercenary was he, no hired Hessian bearing arms for pelf and pay. No myrmidon of autocratic power was he doing unwillingly a despot's command, but a freeman acting out his own mind and heart. No soldier of fortune was he, hungering for the spoils of conquest. No rebel was he, despising duly constituted authority and hoping for aggrandizement in the wreck of a wealthy political fabric; no invader of a foreign soil for territorial expansion and land lust. Stripped of all the laurels of eulogy the fact looms up unquestioned and unquestionable, that the men who wore the gray were the expression of manly independence and the incarnation of principle, attesting on a thousand fields of carnage the sacredness of their sincerity.

"Who was this confederate soldier? A volunteer responding with promptness and alacrity to the call of duty. A patriot rallying for the defense of his home, the protection of his property, the preservation of his rights, the honor of his state and local self-government. Aye, in the spirit of 1776 he battled for the principles of the union as these were handed down to him by the fathers of our common country. Never were men more conscientious than these confederates, never were warriors animated less by passion and prejudice or more by the guidance of pure and lofty principle for principle's sake.

"History knows of no nobler demonstration of fidelity than shines in the record of confederate service and sacrifice.

"The south before the war, like the south of today, was the most thoroughly American section of our country. If there were foreigners in 1861, unnaturalized and not wishing to be naturalized, they were not in the south. Foreigners seldom came south and those who did so usually changed their allegiance to the American constitution and subsequently accepted the doctrine of state's rights. If there were regiments of immigrants, even brigades of new arrivals at Castle Garden in the army during the civil war, they were not enlisted on the southern side. If there were recruits who could scarcely speak the English language and were wholly ignorant of American history, American laws and the genius of American institutions, they were not recruits to the confederate army. If there were men who were soldiers for bounties and not for patriotism it is difficult to imagine them wearing ragged suits of gray.

"Never was there gathered on a field of conflict on this continent an army that was so wholly American, so American in blood and traditions, in character and in courage as that which won renown in the service of a section. It is true, but the most genuinely characteristic section of the great American republic.

"Intensely American is the south today. Confederate character is a permanent possession in the American commonwealth. McKinley said so and Roosevelt indorses the sentiment. If there be traitors to democratic ideas, anarchists who would annihilate all organized government, you will not find them in the south. Democracy and not plutocracy rules the south. Men and not millionaires are still in the saddle. Define Americanism, tell me what it is. Is it nationalism as opposed to sectionalism? Then the south is American. Is it patriotism as opposed to partizanship and public patronage? Then the south is American. Is it loyalty to the American flag and willingness to defend it even unto death? Nowhere in all this broad land are there more men ready to give this test of supreme loyalty than are found in the late confederate states. The Spanish war is the demonstration.

"No more are we simply Georgians, though Georgians with pride we be; no more southerners alone, though we cherish southern traditions and glow with satisfaction at every memory of southern history; but wholly always and supremely Americans, Americans to prove our Americanism whenever America needs us to uphold the stately fabric of by civil convulsions or endangered by the American nationality, whether threatened aggressions of an alien foe."

MAKE ALCOHOL FROM SAWDUST

Mississippi Lumbermen Are Erecting Plant for That Purpose.

Jackson, Miss., April 26.—(Special.)—Lumber manufacturers in Mississippi predivt that the day is not far distant when every ounce of sawdust at the various mills in this state will be utilized in the manufacture of wood alcohol, and that lumbermen will place a value on sawdust second only to that of the main product of their plants.

A plant is now being erected at Hattiesburg for the purpose of transforming sawdust into alcohol, and a series of practical tests have demonstrated that there is a large margin of profit in the enterprise. The concern is known as the Lignum Products Company, and was chartered several months ago with a capital stock of $250,000. The necessary mechanical devices have been perfected and patented, and the industry will be in operation within a few weeks.

Last night the same man, supposedly, was seen in the business section of the city brandishing two pistols, and before the police could get him he was gone. It is rumored here that a negro was shot at Green's Cut last night by an unknown person, supposed to be the same man.

Spring Place, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—Captain A. K. Ramsey, who was shot by Jim Franklin, late Sunday night, died from the wound last night. In his death this county has lost one of her leading citizens. Captain Ramsey commanded Joe Edmondson's brigade during the war between the states, and made a good soldier. He had represented this county in the legislature in 1888-9, and was the present member, and had many friends throughout the state. He left a wife adn ten children.

Jim Franklin and Joe Swainger are now in the county jail, where they will remain until the superior court convenes in August, when they will have to answer to the charge of murder. Public sentiment is very high against them, but the law will be allowed to take its course.

Lewis, a capitalist of Baltimore, who once lived in this community, is interested, and will see the venture through to a successful finish. The hotel will cost not less than $25,000.

MEDICINE MADE IN THE HOUSE

For Use in the Approaching Campaign for Congress.

Washington, April 26.—The agricultural appropriation bill was again furnished the theme for discussion in the house today, although but few references were made to the subject matter of the bill.

Under the latitude of general debate, the leaders on both sides began "medicine making" for the approaching congressional campaign. Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, predicting that tariff revision and protection would furnish the main issue of the campaign.

Mr. Boutelle, of Illinois, referred to the "watch trust" speech of Mr. Rainey, of Illinois, while Mr. Sulzer, of New York, talked on the American merchant, and Mr. Simms, of Tennessee, on free rural delivery boxes.

It was a field day in attendance, the number on the floor being exceedingly large, while the galleries were crowded with interested listeners, who greatly enjoyed the wordy combats.

NEW RAILROADS BOOM SOUTH ALABAMA TOWNS

DAM OF COMER MILLS, AT ELBA, 1,500 HORSE POWER.

By E. L. Parker.

IN 1874 south Alabama possessed less than 300 miles of railroad, and fewer people to create traffic for roads than now live in an average American city.

Coffee county, in which I have just spent a very pleasant week, had no railroad facilities at all prior to 1898; at which time the population was less than 15,000, and the products of the whole county would not exceed the value of the products of Enterprise, the chief city. The annual profits from a single industry of the county at the present time will exceed by a good-sized fortune the combined profits of all the manufacturing industry of ten years ago.

The phenomenal development of the county has been attended by phenomenal increases in population and property values. Lands that formerly sold for $1.50 per acre are now bringing $25 and upward, and many precincts at this time contain fully one-third of what was the county's population in 1890.

Enterprise the Chief City.

In 1898, just after the Plant system, now the Atlantic Coast Line, built its branch from Elba Junction westward through the country to Elba, the county site, I made my first trip to the county, stopping off at Enterprise for a night. All in the round world to be seen in the town was three small one-story frame structures, one of logs, in which were kept the postoffice, some sardines, cheese and crackers; a small, somewhat squatted building called the Baptist church, in which the public school was taught, and whole herds of cattle and droves of sheep and hogs. Around it grew in superabundance thousands and thousands of acres of fine yellow pine timber, the cutting and marketing of which, as lumber, brought thousands into the community and made Enterprise the chief city of the county.

Enterprise today has fully 3,500 inhabitants, forty or fifty mercantile establishments, two banks, with a combined capital of $100,000; a cotton mill of 20,000 spindles, and a forty-ton, two-press oil mill. It is electric lighted, has a water works, and at present is putting in an ice plant. It is inhabited by merchants and business men from nearly every section of the south, some of whom enjoy the advantages of expert business training, which insures for the town methods and results obtainable by no other means. I saw in several of the stores the cash carrier system in use, floor walkers and free delivery systems equal to the most perfect in the large cities, all of which has resulted from the ingeniousness and progressiveness imported less than ten years ago into the county. One of the crying needs of the farms in every section of the south is live, progressive and ingenious agriculturalists that will transform the present day methods of the fields as successively and radically as the city merchant has country merchandizing. System that belongs to bankers, to business men as distinguished from farmers and to all transactions in general can no more be ignored on the farm without loss than in the best regulated business office.

One of the pioneer firms of the town, the sales of which in 1905 amounted to $500,000, is Henderson-Law Company, the first concern to erect a brick building and established a business of huge proportions in Enterprise.

In speaking of the great growth of Enterprise and the future prospects of the town, Mr. Henderson, the senior member of the firm, told me the location of his store, which is now valued at $1,500, was purchased eight years ago for less than $100, and the present building, now too small, when erected at that time, was considered too big for the town. "Since that time," said he, "year after year has shown a large increase in our business, until today, in cotton, mules, fertilizers and general merchandise, our sales will approximate $500,000, a good sum for a single enterprise of any town, if I be allowed to say it.

"We have built up this extensive interest on the fine agricultural and timber resources of this section, there being within the vicinity a class of the wealthiest and most substantial farmers in the state, whose lands will readily produce 1,000 pounds of seed cotton to the acre and a great abundance of grain. The forest has been worth from $10 to $20 an acre, all of which, with the cotton and the oil mills, have served to make merchandising one of the most profitable occupations of all.

"And when the timber is fully cut up and the lands cleared of the forests opportunities for successful merchandizing will double themselves, and we may look for an even greater period of prosperity than this with which we have been blessed for the last eight years. What we need and must obtain is more farmers to settle up these lands and cultivate them. As cotton is sure to remain at a good price and the soil of this section is better adopted to it than most others, I look for a larger influx of new people right here in Coffee county than any other of the state in the next ten years."

Elba City Public School Building, Erected in 1897 at Cost of $20,000.

Other firms of the town with extensive business who help to make Enterprise a busy center of commerce and trade are as follows:

W. H. Edwards, general merchandise; J. C. Walden & Co., composed of J. C. Walden, C. P. Payne and J. R. Middlebrooks; A. M. Owen, wholesale and retail grocer; Enterprise Dry Goods and Millinery Company, with Mr. W. L. Edwards, formerly of Birmingham, and Miss Bernice Hendrick, of Luverne, in charge; C. S. Chapman, of Hayneville, dry goods, shoes and groceries; R. E. Byrd, general merchandise; Seay, Foulk & Co., dry goods; J. E. James, wholesale and retail grocer; Enterprise Drug Company, drugs; Baltimore Bargain House, dry goods and clothing; Harrison & Bro., jewelry; J. W. Harrison, shoes and hosiery; Walden & Martin, drugs, and J. W. Henderson, drugs and medicines.

Prosperous Banks of Enterprise.

The two banks of Enterprise have each a paid in capital of $50,000 and a combined surplus of $30,000. The deposits aggregate $160,000, while the loans and discounts exceed $200,000.

The Enterprise Banking Company, which was established in 1904, is now located in handsome quarters built especially for it, of pressed brick. It is equipped with all the latest improvements, has a burglar-proof time lock safe and is in every respect one of the best equipped country banks of the south.

The same conveniences enjoyed by the Enterprise bank has been installed by the First National, the oldest bank of town. It is officered by such well known men as L. A. Boyd, J. E. Henderson, J. W. Malone, H. D. Goynes and W. E. Low. The officers of the Enterprise Banking Company are as follows: H. M. Sessions, president; J. B. Byrd, vice president, and Charles Adams Faircloth, cashier.

There are unlimited opportunities in Enterprise for the development of the savings bank department, which each of the banks will soon establish.

Elba the County Site.

Elba, the county site, lies about 20 miles west of Enterprise, on the Pea river. It is the western terminus of the Elba division of the Atlantic Coast Line and contains about 1,500 people. It is surrounded by vast water powers, which are soon to be developed for use in operating an electric air line from Montgomery to Geneva via Troy and Elba.

There are about twenty mercantile stores in the town, a bank with a capital of $75,000, a fertilizer factory of 9,000-ton capacity and a veneering plant. This town is the headquarters of the Rainer Mercantile Company, one of the largest mercantile concerns in the county, the sales of which exceed $500,000 annually.

It contains the court house, which cost $35,000; a $20,000 school building and one of the leading hotels in the state.

The following list comprises the leading merchants: Rainer Mercantile Company, Edwards & Edwards, Elba Drug Company, Tucker & Harp, druggists, and Mizell Mercantile Company. The town receives about 10,000 bales of cotton, and is the trading post of a large farming element to the west, which has not yet been developed by railroads.

What shows the prosperous condition of Elba merchants more conclusively than anything else is the large deposits in the First National bank, they being the heaviest depositors of this institution. On April 6 this bank had $108,060.54 on deposit, loans and discounts of $221,213.43 and surplus and undivided profits of $30,000. If banks are any criterion of prosperous conditions, certainly the statement of the First National of Elba is flattering to the community indeed.

FOUR CHARTERS FOR NEW ROADS

Waycross, Baxley and Vidalia Is Newest Line Proposed.

Waycross, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—Within the last two months three charters for a new railroad in Waycross have been granted, and today a petition for still another railroad was forwarded to the secretary of state.

The newest proposed road is to be known as the Waycross, Baxley and Vidalia railroad, and will run from Vidalia, in Montgomery county, by the way of Baxley, in Appling county, to Waycross.

The petitioners are: W. H. Buchanan, George W. Deen, J. M. Cox, W. R. Beach, Benjamin G. Parks, John T. Myers, and J. S. Bailey, of Waycross; C. W. Deen, of Baxley; C. G. Edwards, of Savannah; J. E. Melton, of Blarney; W. T. McArthur and George M. Mathews, of Vidalia.

The line will be fifty-five miles long, and will pass through the counties of Montgomery, Appling, Pierce, and Ware. It will open up some of the largest hard wood and pine lands in the state.

The promoters claim that this road will shorten the distance from Augusta and other east Georgia cities into Florida by at least 150 miles.

The distance from Baxley to Waycross will be shortened by 42 miles, and it is figured that the Southern railroad by using the new line will shorten their distance into Florida by 22 miles.

It is claimed that the Jesup short line from Jesup to Folkston, which is 55 miles long, was constructed for the purpose of shortening the distance to Florida by 22 miles. To gain a further saving of 22 miles will require only the 32 miles between Waycross and Baxley.

The petitioners for the new road ask to be capitalized at two hundred thousand dollars with the privilege of increasing their capital to one million dollars. They claim that it is their intention to begin construction work as soon as a charter is granted.

SAYS ALCOHOL HEADS POISONS

Dr. Taylor Concludes Series of Lectures on Temperance.

Covington, Ga., April 26.—(Special.)—Dr. E. O. Taylor concluded his series of temperance lectures here last night with the discussion of "Alcohol as a Brain Poison and What It Leads To." In classifying the different poisons, mercury, arsenic, strychnine, alcohol, etc., he placed alcohol at the top of the list as the most serious because of its effect upon the brain. In this connection he dwelt at length on the psychological action of alcohol, showing how moderate drinkers become criminals by impairing the moral tone and undermining the spiritual faculties.

Dr. Taylor, at the conclusion of his lecture, introduced his experiments, which were both instructive and entertaining. His analysis of lager beer, home-made wine, whisky, peruna, Jamaica ginger and lemon extract showed the presence of a large per cent of alcohol.

NEARBY SHORTS COVERED FREELY

Cotton Recovered Part of Its Recent Loss as a Result

Shorts Feared Notice Day Today in New York on Reports That Notices Were Being Stopped in New Orleans, First Notice Day There.

New York, April 26.—The cotton market recovered part of its recent loss during today's trading, largely as a result of covering by nearby shorts in preparation for notice day tomorrow. The close was very steady at a net advance of 5@17 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 250,000 bales. The opening was steady at an advance of 1@4 points in response to steady cables. But Wall street was weak and unsettled early, the weather map made a good showing on the average, there was no sign of bull support and the market soon eased off under local bear pressure and a little scattering liquidation. Declining to within a point or two of the low level of the previous day, the market was rallied later in the session by reports of firm spot conditions in the south and private wires saying that notices representing about 1,500 bales were being stopped in New Orleans. The May long interest in the local market seemed to be maintaining its position on the eve of notice day, making it seem certain that notices here tomorrow will be stopped, and in the late trading there was quite a little covering by shorts as well as buying by one or two spot interests. The close was within 2 or 3 points of the top.

New Orleans Cotton Market.

New Orleans, April 26.—Spot cotton in good demand and firmer. Sales 4,650 bales, including 1,500 to arrive and 900 f.o.b. Quotations advanced 1-8c; middling 11 1-16c.

Futures opened quiet with prices about the same as yesterday's closing. Soon after the opening the market eased off slightly, but this was followed by a sharp advance. Today was the first notice day for May in this market and some 1,700 notices were put out, the greater part of which were soon stopped, but about 500 bales circulated for some time before finding any one anxious for tenders. The market closed firm within a point of the top, the list showing net gains of 7 to 10 points.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, April 26.—The dry goods market today was steady and quiet. Shipments of goods to the Pacific coast were quite large, many resident buyers having already received orders for duplication of all lines in the destroyed district in San Francisco. Jobbing houses did a fair trade.

Ware & Leland.

New York, April 26.—COTTON—Tomorrow being notice day, many shorts were disposed to cover contracts on the decline that took place during the early trading this morning. Several spot houses sent in buying orders in May, and so much cotton was absorbed that before the afternoon it was evident that the market was really somewhat congested. A wave of buying in May started that carried May option to 11.00, and the entire tone of the market was one of decided firmness. On the advance July was sold as usual, but the new crops advanced materially on short covering and buying of new crop months against sales of July. As far as the market itself is concernment, there was no increase in general business, and practically no change in surroundings. The decline in the stock market during the morning helped weaken cotton but later on in the day, the fact that the trade generally believes the New York stock will be taken on contract when delivered, operated in favor of the market, and prices steadied in the face of a slight decline in Liverpool. With good weather in the south there is likely to be selling of the new crops on an advance over 10½c. The natural course of the market, in the event of the bull crowd taking hold of spot cotton, will be toward a higher level of values—temporarily, at least.

Chicago, April 26.—WHEAT—Trade was quiet early, with prices working off, sentiment being bearish on the forecast for rain in the west and southwest. A good deal of long wheat came out for July. May was offered rather freely, but there was enough received in the way of crop damage reports to start shorts to covering, and it looked as if the northwest were buying May while selling July. Sentiment is somewhat mixed at present, and all that can be expected is a scalping market, although should the July kind move down to any extent, we would favor its purchase.

CORN—The Patten house sold May early and filled the crowd up. Weather conditions were good with sentiment inclined to be bearish that allowed of prices working off with selling rather free toward the close on an estimate of 1,600,000 bushels to be shipped from Argentina. We would not be surprised to witness lower prces.

OATS—There was not much change in prices, but the Patten house was a good seller of May, with the buying scattered. There was talk of a good export demand at the seaboard, but there are fears of lake shipments being tied up.

PROVISIONS—The market was quite strong. Commission houses and one or two local operators turning in as good buyers, especially of lard on advices from Germany that stocks are decreasing rapidly. Toward the close the market turned heavy on realizing.

New York, April 26.—STOCKS—There was another burst of necessary liquidation accompanied by professional raiding in the market today and the level again reduced. The situation remains clouded, and we continue to advocate the conservative trading operation which has proved the best thus far. Until the liquidation is completed lower prices may be expected in stocks subjected to the same, and it is extremely difficult to ascertain the extent and the concentration of liquidation of the necessity kind under ordinary conditions, because it is so much to the interest of liquidators to keep it secret. Fundamental conditions seem to us good, but money complications have to be reckoned with, and they have simply forced a lightening of loads. We think the market is becoming more compact, but it is likely to be feverish for a time, with nothing more than rallies of varying extentuntil thesituation clears.

Miller & Co.

New York, April 26.—COTTON—Notice day in New Orleans today—only a few tenders, all of them taken up; weather quite favorable; The Journal of Commerce presents its first monthly reports from Georgia and Alabama, indicating an increased acreage and a decided increase of fertilizers. Tomorrow will be notice day in New York, and the opinion prevails that a heavy tender of May cotton will be made, and that the spot interests will fight against any advance. However, we believe October and December cotton bought on declines with a little patience will prove profitable. Liverpool is due to come 6 points higher in the morning.

STOCKS—The general market was lower again today. The heavy loss of cash by the New York banks has also an unfavorable effect on sentiment, and the continued drain of funds to San Francisco is bound to give us a bad bank statement on Saturday. Over and above all this, is the fact that England's reserve liability is figured 11 per cent lower than at the same time last year, and we are inclined to believe that this forecasts an advance in the Bank of England discount rate. Although we shall have rallies from time to time, we believe that the stock market is a sale on all such rallies.

WHEAT—Trading dull prospects for a bumper crop excellent, and everybody has either sold or is selling wheat, which leads up to look for an advance, and we favor buying on soft spots.

CORN—Demand good throughout the world for cash corn, receipts liberal, but stocks small. Buy on the declines.

PROVISIONS—Lard led the advance. Foreign advices bullish, stocks small. The demand for lard is said to be greater than current manufactures.

Hubbard Bro. & Co.

New York, April 26.—COTTON—Our local traders are looking for a better market on the stopping of the May notices. They expect that the tenders will be all taken up, which will relieve the market, and that may lead to a rather better demand from the trade. Acting on this theory they have been free buyers of the cotton sold by outside holders, who did not care to receive the May contracts. Spinners were not large buyers in Liverpool today, having large supplies on hand, nor was there any increase in outside interest in the market. Weather conditions continue to be all that could be desired fo rthe growing crop.

Cotton Seed Oil and Meal.

New York, April 26.—Cotton seed oil was less active today, but prices held steady at the recent advance; prim ecrude f. o. b. mills, 3 01-2c; do. summer yellow 37 1-2@38c; do. white 39 1-2@40c; do. winter yellow 39 1-2@40c.

Memphis, April 26.—Cotton seed oil: Prime crude 31c; prime summer yellow 34c; prime meal 25@25 1-2; prime cake 25@25 1-2.

New Orleans, April 26.—Cotton seed oil steady; prime refined in barrels 36c; prime crude, loose 31c.

L. J. Anderson & Co.

New York, April 26.—Following a period of relative weakness, the cotton future market today for a time showed comparative strength. Shorts were the best buyers, however, and their operations were based on the light receipts. The prospects are for a continued small movement. Statistical position of cotton continues to serve as the principal point in favor of a bullish position n the market, and private advices from the south late today indicated that certain consumers were bidding more anxiously and that spot prices in consequence were likely to remain relatively firm. However, the late speculative market was rather quiet in view of the proximity of "notice day" and rumors of various sorts suggesting the possibility of interesting price fluctuations in connection with the May deal. The Price interest continued to appear bullish and through several brokers they gave vent to numerous arguments favorable to the long side of the account. On the other hand, it is reported by close observers that a number of the more important shorts have recently succeeded in getting under cover with a great proportion of their lines. The late hour witnessed the best prices of the day, and belated shorts in May seemed anxious to clean out their committments.

Coffee and Sugar.

New York, April 26.—Coffee, spot Rio steady; No. 7 invoice 8 1-16; mild firm. Coffee futures opened steady at unchanged prices ot a decline of 5 points in sympathy with lower cables. It was the first notice day for May contracts; and it was estimated that notices for 150,000 bags were circulated. This caused further switching from May to later months, and some outright liquidation, but after showing a net loss of 5 points at one time during the session, the market improved a little toward the close, and was finally steady net unchanged to 5 points lower; sales 159,000 bags, of which about 100,000 bags were exchanged; May 6.50@6.55; July 6.75; September 6.95@7.00; October 7.00@7.05; December 7.20@7.25; January 7.30@7.35; February 7.35; March 7.45@7.50.

Sugar, raw steady; fair refining 2 7-8@2 29-32; centrifugal 96-test 3 3-8@3 13-32; molasses sugar 2 5-8@2 21-32; refined steady.

New Orleans, April 26.—Sugar quiet but steady; open kettle centrifugal 3 1-8@3 1-2; centrifugal whites 3 3-4@4; yellow 3 3-8@3 3-4; seconds 2@3 1-8. Molasses nominal; open kettle 17@30; centrifugal 7@20. Sirup nominal at 25@30.

The Liverpool Grain Market.

Liverpool, April 26.—Wheat, spot nominal; futures firm; May 6s 9d; July 6s 1 1-8d; September 6s 5 7-8d. Corn, spot steady; American mixed new 4s 6 1-2d; do. old 4s 9 1-2d; futures steady; July 4s 4 3-4d.

WHEAT WAS DULL MOST OF DAY

Trading Consisted of Changing From May to July.

At the Close July Was 1-8 to 1-4c Lower—Corn Closed 3-8c and Oats 1-8c Lower—Provisions Closed 2 1-2 to 12 1-2c Down.

Chicago, April 26.—Official prediction of rain, to be followed by cooler weather in Kansas, caused weakness in the local wheat market today. At the close July wheat was off ⅛@¼c. Corn was down ⅜c. Oats were ⅛c lower. Provisions showed a loss of 2½@12½c.

Except for occasional spurts of activity the wheat market was dull, and much of the trading consisted of changing from the May to July delivery. There was also considerable straight liquidation by holders of the May option. Crop news was conflicting, but during the early part of the session advices from the southwest seemed to be more favorable to the bears, several reports denying damage by dry weather. The market was further weakened by a weather bureau forecast of rain in Kansas. Later fresh damage reports were received and started fair buying of July, and resulted in a steadier feeling. Many local traders who had sold short early in the session were moderate buyers during the last hour. The market closed steady. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 79¼@79⅜c, sold up to 79½c, and then declined to 78¾c. The close was at 79¼. May ranged between 79½c and 80⅜@80½c, and closed at a net loss of ⅜c at 79¾@79⅞c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 116,500. Primary receipts were 376,000 bushels compared with 494,000 a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 258 cars against 191 last week and 173 a year ago.

Scattered liquidation by holders of May option had a weakening effect on corn. Liberal local receipts and increased acceptances from the country were the factors that induced the selling. Trading, however, was rather dull. The close was easy. The July option opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 46@46⅛c, sold between 45⅞@45¾c and 46⅛c and closed at 46⅝@46¾c. Receipts 220 cars, with 42o tcontractgrade.

Oats were quite firm early in the day because of an active demand by cash interests and pit traders. Weakness of wheat, however, caused considerable selling later in the session, and resulted in an easier tone. July opened unchanged at 31c, sold up to 31⅛@31¼c, and then reacted to 30¾@30⅞c. The close was at 30⅞c. May closed at 32⅜@32½c—a shade lower than yesterday. Receipts 145 cars.

A 5c advance in the price of live hogs imparted a firm tone to the provision market at the start. This firmness was maintained until late in the day, when profit taking in lard and ribs caused moderate weakness. At the close July pork was off 10@12½c, at $15.82½@15.855. Lard was down 2½c at $8.70. Ribs were 2½c lower at 8.65.

Estimated for tomorrow: Wheat 1 car; corn 220 cars; oats 153 cars; hogs 12,000 head.

Gibert & Clay.

Chicago, April 26.—WHEAT.—The market is rather weak today. Damage reports from the southwest, which were the sustaining influence in yesterday's market are again in evidence this morning, but are not so numerous and the fear of a crop scare is wearing off, at least for the present, and the weather bureau predicts rains for Kansas tonight. The opening was firm. There was good commission house demand at the start led by Pringle, Fitch and Rankin. The market went about 1-4c over previous close. Here the crowd started selling, together with some commission houses, and market dropped away rapidly to about 1c under the high point in May.

CORN—The market opened steady to a shade higher, but though some cash houses have been quite free buyers of May and September, the commission house selling has been of sufficient quantity to keep the market rather soft. Weakness in wheat has also been a factor, and market now is still a trifle under the previous close. No feature to the market.

OATS.—This market has held firmer than other grains. The start was quite firm and the crowd were the best buyers, together with cash interests, and the commission houses did the selling. Wheat weakness caused the crowd to dump their holdings causing some decline to under the previous close, but then market closed just about unchanged and steady.

PROVISIONS.—The list has been very quiet and trade small. Opening prices were mostly higher on scattered buying and selling was by longs principally. Prices have been above the previous close all the morning and prices now at thhe top.

THE ACCURATE MAP.

THE CONSTITUTION'S NEW GEORGIA MAP.

The Constitution's new map of Georgia, which is on the front page of the New Home Library Wall Charts, is a marvel of accuracy. There were forty-seven new postoffices established in Georgia during 1905, forty-four of them appear on the map and are thoroughly indexed in the state gazetteer that goes with it, so you can find them instantly. These new offices are not on railroads especially, but are given right where they should appear in the county.

The new counties, of course, are shown, with accuracy and are as clearly defined as if they were laid off when Chatham county was staked out. The congressional districts are given by number on the face of the map and are plainly marked.

The newly engraved plate is not an adaptation from old worn-out stuff, but every part of it is new and clear cut. The print is beautiful, coloring perfectly blended and contrasted, and the whole presents itself really as a work of art. It deserves a place in every home, not only as a piece of finished workmanship, but because of its accuracy as well. Get a 1906 map and post yourself about your own state. Keep one at home for your children. Be sure there is one in every school room in your county so that Georgia may be known and understood by the young people of the state.

Mr. George Ketcham, now of St. George, the new colony of hustling Georgians by adoption, in Charlton county, was in our office during the week and called for a map. His eyes glistened as he sought the spot where St. George ought to show, and there it was, near St. Marys river, where it should be.

"Now, I want that map," said he, "for it is the first one I have ever seen that gives St. George properly."

Doubtless there are towns in your own county that you have never seen mapped. You will find them on The Constitution's new Georgia map, if they have been in existence long enough to have a local habitation and a name. Great historic interest is added to the map by our showing in authentic half-tones, around the border, many Notable Pictures.

Portraits of forty governors of Georgia, almost an unbroken line from Oglethorpe to Terrell, portraits of all presidents of the United States, portraits of rulers of every foreign country, flags of all nations. These all make a most convenient and useful reference aid to the business man, the lawyer, teacher, doctor or any other intellignt citizen. Every office, library, school room or home should have one of these excellent sets of charts.

GOVERNOR TERRELL has the map at his private desk for his personal reference and expresses delight in it in all respects.

THE STATE LIBRARIAN has placed the map prominently in the library for the use of the public.

EX-GOVERNOR ALLEN D. CANDLER, now the compiler of state records, and one of the best posted men in the state upon Georgia matters, says of the map of Georgia:

"Editor Constitution: I have your splendid map of Georgia, suspended on the wall of my office, and I can say unhesitatingly that it is the best map of the state yet produced, splendidly executed, as accurate as it is possible to make a map and replete with useful information. It is indeed within itself a pretty good encyclopedia of Georgia, by reference to which one can find out almost anything he may desire to know concerning our state. Sincerely yours,
"A. D. CANDLER,
"Compiler of State Records."

Get your map now by sending $2 for a new three months' subscription to Daily and Sunday Constitution, or $1.50 for Daily only three months. The full set of three wall charts, bound together at top with metal strip and hanger, 28 by 36 inches, will be sent postage prepaid to your address.

LIQUIDATION WAS DRASTIC IN STOCKS

Resulted in Considerable Damage to Prices.

Selling Was Clearly in Evidence for Direct Account of Some of Insurance Companies — Recovered Slightly Near the Close of Session.

New York, April 26.—The stock market was subjected to further drastic liquidation today with damage resulting to prices. There was nothing in the news to give fresh cause for the outbreak of weakness, and it merely represented the working out of the problem thrown upon the financial world by the San Francisco calamity. Selling was clearly in evidence for direct account of some of the insurance companies. The sentimental effect of this selling had a decidedly depressing effect on speculative sentiment throughout the street. The shrinkage in values also brought out large sales for account of some of the great commission houses, and this was attributed to the letting go of some of the speculative accounts. Reports of a large loan intended for the Pennsylvania company was an adverse factor, not only on that stock, but on the whole market. Reading showed some resistance to the day's weakness, and confidence was professed by the buyers of the stock in a settlement of the anthracite labor troubles. Consolidated Gas steadied up on the announcement of a reduction in its dividend to a 4 per cent basis after a long period of decline in expectation of this action. High grade investment stocks were especially affected by the day's selling. Bear operators were eager sellers on the declines, and their buying to cover shorts were responsible for occasional rallies. Little support was accorded the market, while liquidation seemed to be forced, but with the lull in the selling pressure measures were taken to effect some restoration of the day's losses. The demand was languid at the recovery, and the announcement just before the close of engagements of $4,000,000 in gold for import stimulated an active demand. Reading leading as at other times during the day, and the closing was generally firm.

MISSION BOARD BEGINS SESSION

Methodist Officials Are Gathered at Nashville.

Dr. Lambuth, Senior Secretary of the Board, Presented His Report and Showed That in All Departments Progress Was Made.

Nashville, April 26.—The board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, met in annual session here today. Dr. W. R. Lambuth, senior secretary of the board of missions, presented his report to the officers of the board.

The report in part follows:

"The quadrennium, which has just closed, has been the greatest in the history of the missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. The increase in membership in the foreign field, which was over 12 per cent last year, and the steady growth in collections at home, give an increase of over a hundred thousand in four years.

"The figures for the fiscal year ending March 3, furnished by the treasurer, are as follows:

"Collected on assessments, $355,626; increase over 1904-5, $37,837,802; receipts from all sources, $467,843; increase over 1904-05, $30,987.

"The receipts of the woman5s foreign missionary society have been $155,909, which, added to the $467,846, received by the board of missions, gives a sum total of $623,755 contributed for foreign missions. This goes well beyond the half million mark."

English Wives and the Law.

(From The Saturday Review.)

The appeal in the house of lords in the action brought by Paquin, limited, the Dover street milliners, against Mrs. Holden, shows that a married woman who is living with her husband, and has his authority for purchases, cannot herself be made responsible as a principal; she is his agent, and nothing more. Two lords thought she ought to be, as the company knew nothing about the husband. Mrs. Holden might have been a widow of living separate. But the lord chancellor and Lord Macnaghten agreed with the court of appeal that, since the facts were that Mr. and Mrs. Holden were keeping house together, she must be held to have contracted, as agent, and not independently for herself, and this is therefore the law.

And yet Lord Macnaghten quoted a saying of Lord Bramwell's: "I very much doubt whether a tradesmai has any intention of trusting the husband. He hopes and expects that somehow the wife will get the money and pay for the goods without the husband knowing anything about the matter." Ten sentiment of this is against his legal opinion, however, but it agreeds with the evidence of Paquin's manager that they always treated a lady as a principal, not as an agent.

Lord Robertson, one of the lords who would have made the lady liable, pointed out that his view would not the less make the husband responsible also; but, of course, the husband was not sued in this particular case, because he was found to be insolvent.
